Barham, Lassiter Contesting Bench In 2-Parish Area

Pegging their respective campaigns on responsibility and experience, two Democratic candidates swung down the home-stretch Friday as voters prepared to cast their ballots today in the 4th Judicial District Primary.

Voting for the late District Judge David I. Garrett Sr.'s post, one of the two candidates, District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter of Monroe, or Bastrop City Judge Mack E. Barham, is practically assured of the position.

Democratic nomination in the voting area, Ouachita and Morehouse Parish, is tantamount to election.

ROLLS LIGHT

A relatively light registration is listed on the books, with 24,793 in Ouachita and 4,488 in Morehouse. Polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Barham said the "demanding duties of district judge" calls for "fearless and impartial justice more than ever before to maintain your individual rights."

Barham said he is convinced his more than 12 years as city judge at Bastrop proves he lives up to this requirement.

No Yielding On Schools In Virginia

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP) — Prince Edward County, which abandoned public schools in 1959 to escape court-ordered integration, moved Friday to keep them shut for a third straight year.

The county board of supervisors once more approved a budget which does not provide funds for public education. Instead, the budget earmarks $285,000 for school tuition grants.

Such grants have been the financial props of private, segregated schools operated for the county's white students.

Negro children have had no schools since the 1958-59 session. Negroes have rejected the proffered help of white leaders in setting up private schools for Negroes through use of the tuition grants.

The supervisors' action Friday came in the face of a suit in U.S. District Court in Richmond seeking to force reopening of the public schools. Negro plaintiffs have challenged the constitutionality of the tuition grants, and the U.S. Department of Justice has asked permission to intervene in the case as co-plaintiff.

Left standing by the supervisors in the 1961-62 budget was an ordinance providing tax credits for people who donate to the private school foundation for white children. This, too, is under court assault.

Alabama Riders Lose Court Bid

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge Friday refused to set aside his restraining order against "Freedom Riders" and a city attorney said he will defend the order at an injunction hearing Monday.

U. S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., denied arguments by lawyers for the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and other groups testing bus and bus station integration that the temporary restraining order should be set aside.

Earlier, the Justice Department filed a brief in Johnson's court objecting to the limitation on freedom rides and asking to be relieved of the duty of supporting the order.

Avants Not Bidding For School Post

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A state education department employee whose name was offered as a candidate for the post of East Baton Rouge Parish school superintendent said Friday he doesn't want the job.

Mack Avants, in charge of recruitment of teachers for the state department, said he didn't want his name injected into a political struggle for the post "since the board has delayed the appointment of a new superintendent for a period of two weeks."

Winston McVea, member of the local board, offered Avants' name for the job Thursday after Supt. Lloyd V. Funchess was ousted.

Avants confirmed that McVea and four other board members appointed by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis in a board-packing move last winter had approached him to take the job.

Avants is a segregationist who was appointed superintendent of Orleans Parish schools last winter by the legislature when the state and federal government were struggling over school integration.

East Baton Rouge Parish here is under federal court order to desegregate schools. An exact date for desegregation has not been set.

The board's action firing Funchess, who in January had been voted a new four-year term, drew promises of court challenges from the ousted superintendent and taxpayers.

The board voted to name a new superintendent June 22 after taking applications.

MANNED MOON TRIP

Cost To Americans Will Be $250 Each

WASHINGTON (AP) — To put an American on the moon and bring him back alive within 10 years, as President Kennedy wants, will cost $250 for each person in the nation, the State Department's chief science adviser estimated Friday.

The per capita cost was figured by Dr. Walter Whitman who commented that scientific activities by the government already have mushroomed so much in recent years that Americans, on the average, already invest $60 a year in this field.

For this and other reasons, he said, the American people, especially the younger generation, are going to expect more news about science in their newspapers and through other communications media.

Whitman made his observation in speaking to a conference of scientists, newspaper editors, sci-

Goldwater Says Communists Call Tune For Regime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Friday the nation desperately needs a presidential statement of U.S. objectives in the cold war and a priority list to carry them out.

Goldwater accused President Kennedy and his administration of following "a policy of almost calculated confusion" in giving the country "government-by-crisis."

NEED LEADERSHIP

"At a time when our people are in critical need of the uniting force of strong leadership with a clear purpose and a consistent policy, the New Frontier is changing signals so fast the scouts are confused," Goldwater said in a speech prepared for a conference of United Press International editors.

"It came into office firmly opposed to summit meetings based on 'vague speculative hopes,' but the President has already been to Vienna to talk with Khrushchev. "It came into office deploring '11th hour responses to Soviet-created crisis,' but it has been engaging in just such responses in Laos, Cuba and elsewhere in the world."

Dual Office Bills Are Held Valid

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana attorney general Friday ruled four new legislative bills allowing lawmakers to serve without pay on administrative boards are valid.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis asked whether the legislation was in conflict with the ban against dual office holding. The governor had not acted on the four bills approved by the legislature.

The bills would let Sen. Horace Wilkinson 3rd serve on the Louisiana State University Board, Sen. Frank Diesl, Opelousas, continue on the Greater Krotz Springs Port Commission, Sen. Wendell Harris, Baton Rouge, serve on the State Sovereignty Commission, and several lawmakers serve on the Sabine River Authority.

Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion held the only constitutional provision involved said, "nor shall any person hold or exercise, at the same time, more than one office for profit except that of the justice of the peace or notary public."

The attorney general said, "the language of the constitution above quoted refers to an office of profit only and this proposed legislation very definitely removes any obstacle so far as profit is concerned, because this legislation still prohibits a member of the legislature from receiving any compensation or per diem."

Rain Friday—More Possible

The weatherman finally scored last night with his predictions of showers — in some spots, at least. He has been calling for widely scattered showers all week.

Of course, in some spots they didn't look exactly like showers. And in others, there was no rain at all. It rained hard in the downtown and College-town areas last night but in other spots in town there was little or no shower activity.

As for temperatures, the high yesterday reached 96 degrees with the low being no less than 76.

The weekend outlook calls for partly cloudy skies (sound familiar) and warm with scattered showers today and in the afternoon Sunday. High readings will be between 86 and 90 degrees.

U.S., Allies Split In U.N. Angola Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States split with its North Atlantic allies Friday night to support a U.N. Security Council resolution demanding that Portugal stop repressive measures against the native African population in its riot-ridden territory of Angola. It was the Kennedy administration's third such vote on the Portuguese-Angola question.

JOINS SOVIETS

The council adopted the Asian-African resolution 9-0 with two abstentions. Joining the United States for the resolution was the Soviet Union.

Britain and France abstained, and Portugal, an ally of the three Western powers in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, spoke out strongly against the resolution.

The other seven yes votes came from Chile, China, Ecuador, Turkey, Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic.

The resolution asked for reforms in Angola, where thousands have been killed in clashes between Angolan rebels and Portuguese troops.

It called on Portugal to extend every facility to a subcommittee of the General Assembly set up April 20 to investigate the situation in Angola, and asked the subcommittee to report back as soon as possible.

Portuguese Delegate, Vasco Vieira Garin said his government would ignore the resolution, which he called an illegal intervention in Portuguese domestic affairs.

Garin argued that Angola was an overseas province of Portugal rather than a colony and said before the vote that the resolution was "clearly aimed at creating a propitious international atmosphere for the dismemberment of my country."

Forty-two Asian-African countries and Communist Yugoslavia had asked for the council debate. Ceylon, Liberia and the United Arab Republic—the council members among them—sponsored the resolution.

They got the U.S. vote by agreeing that they themselves would vote for moderating amendments to the resolution.

Tractors Group To Fly To Cuba

DETROIT (AP) — The Tractors for Freedom Committee announced Friday night its technical committee will fly to Havana Monday to discuss the proposed trade of tractors for Cuban prisoners on the assumption Prime Minister Fidel Castro will agree to receive the technicians.

"There has been no response from Castro to the committee's cable last night," an announcement said, "but preparations are being made on the assumption that Castro will agree to receive the committee."

TEXAS TOWER DISASTER

Colonel To Face Air Force Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court-martial was ordered Friday for Col. William M. Banks on charges arising from collapse of a Texas tower radar structure off the New Jersey coast last Jan. 15.

All 28 men on the tower died when it toppled into the Atlantic Ocean.

'Freedom Rider' Donations Hit By More Unions

Thirteen AFL - CIO affiliated union locals in northeast Louisiana Friday issued a statement going on record as opposing use of the labor groups' funds for promotion of "freedom rides."

The notice, signed by Charles R. Anding and L. L. McMillan, president and financial secretary, respectively of the Building Construction Trades Council of Monroe and vicinity, stated the decision was reached in a special called meeting.

"A resolution was unanimously adopted opposing any union funds being used to support the so-called freedom riders or any other subversive organizations," the statement said in part.

Numerous labor organizations in Louisiana affiliated with the AFL-CIO have condemned actions of Walter Reuther and James Carey, high-ranking officials within the union framework.

The two contributed a large sum of money to the "freedom riders," racially mixed groups who have sparked violence in Alabama and other Dixie points while trying to break down segregation laws.

Banks was in command of the Boston Air Defense Center at the time of the disaster. The tower was under this command.

The Air Force announced that the air defense commander, Lt. Gen. Robert M. Lee, ordered the court-martial of Banks, but dismissed charges against two other officers.

They are Maj. William R. Sheppard and Reginald L. Stark. Lee also dismissed a charge against Banks of culpable negligence resulting in death.

The action followed a long investigation.

The Air Force said the dereliction charge against Banks would go to a military court to be appointed by Lee within a week.

The Air Force said the charge specifically states that, "Despite his knowledge of the then structural condition of the tower and his receipt of a severe weather forecast, Col. Banks failed to keep himself apprised of the developing weather situation; did not maintain contact with the officer in charge of the tower and with the commander of the squadron, and failed to hold himself readily available for any action necessary

CHURCH GETS $700,000

Will Of 'Eccentric' Woman Ruled Valid

TRENTON, N. J. (AP) — The will of a retired 89-year-old Jersey City schoolteacher who disinherited her only relative and left over $700,000 to a tiny country church was ruled valid Friday.

The appellate division of Superior Court said Miss Edna K. Denver who died last July bequeathed her fortune to a tiny country church.

Her nephew and only living relative, William D. Beattie, 54, an Oradell businessman, had challenged the will. He said his aunt had delusions, had no idea of her wealth, and could not have left a valid will. He claimed he was disinherited because of a family feud.

The court said, "By commonly accepted standards, Edna K. Denver was very penurious and very eccentric. It noted that she lived in a small apartment heated by a kerosene stove, had ancient furniture, wore old-fashioned black clothes, collected her own rents, and lived on her teacher pension without even clipping her substantial bond coupons.

But, the court commented, "old age, penury and eccentricity do not per se establish a lack of testamentary (will-making) capacity."

It added that the nephew's own witnesses had shown that Miss Denver was a lucid, strong-minded and honest person, who had a shrewd business sense.

The court said apparently she had disinherited Beattie because he did not bury his mother—Miss Denver's sister—in the Shrub Oak family plot, but kept her body in a vault of Hackensack Cemetery for 10 years. He also didn't visit his aunt for 15 years.

Losses High From Blows In 2 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A tornado howled across Kentucky Friday, killing one, injuring scores and inflicting million-dollar damages.

The twister struck Ravenna, Irvine and Bellpoint, in eastern Kentucky, and Columbia, in the south-central part of the state.

BALTIMORE HIT

Near Baltimore, Md., tornado-force winds slammed into a housing development. Eight homes were flattened; 36 damaged. Six persons required hospitalization.

Hardest hit in Kentucky was Ravenna, a community of 1,100. The injured numbered about 50, some 20 of them children attending Bible class at a church. The church collapsed, burying several youngsters.

Valerie Hope Collins, 9, of Newport, was killed by the twister when it struck Bellpoint, south-east of Ravenna, earlier in the day.

Estill County Judge W. M. No-land estimated damage at Ravenna at $1 million.

The tornado crashed into the Ravenna business section first, carrying away the unoccupied top floor of a two-story police station. None of the stores were leveled but upper floors and roofs were collapsed or heavily damaged.

The twister collapsed an overhead steel footbridge, dropping the structure on top of an L&N freight train.

At the suburban development near Baltimore, 30 homes were listed by police as extensively damaged.

U. S. Plane Missing; 8 On Board

TOKYO (AP) — The U. S. Air Force reported Saturday that one of its big C133 turboprop cargo planes with eight men aboard is missing en route to Midway Island.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Board earlier said it had launched a search with three of its vessels in an area of the Pacific 250 miles east of Tokyo.

The four-engine Military Air Transport plane, carrying 47,000 pounds of cargo, took off from the American base of Tachikawa, near Tokyo, Friday midnight. It was last heard from 16 minutes later.

The Air Force declared it missing—and presumably crashed—at 7:45 a.m.

The Air Force dispatched three of its planes to search for the Cargomaster and eight others were called to join the hunt.

The maritime board said it would take about 16 hours for its vessels to reach the site.

Japan's Central Meteorological Agency reported that a low-pressure area over northern Japan had brought strong winds and fog over the Pacific area along the plane's route but added it did not believe the weather was too bad for flying.

The plane was en route to its home base at Travis Air Force Base, California.

The airport restaurant was included because it is segregated, although it is run privately for patrons of the airlines.
The NAACP petition came shortly before five more riders were convicted of breach of the peace charges in city court. The five arrived by Illinois Central Railroad earlier Friday.
The five were Winona Margaret Benner, 19, Dayton, Ohio,

Central Ohio State College student, white; Edward J. Bromberg, 27, Chestnut Hill, Mass., Columbia University student, white; Del Greenblatt, 21, Brooklyn, N. Y., Cornell University student, white; Patricia Elaine Bryant, 20, Elmira, N. Y., Central Ohio State College, Negro; and Heathcliff Rush, 20, Concord, N. H., Central Ohio State College, white.
All were given the maximum sentence of $200 fine and four months in jail by Municipal Judge James L. Spencer.

Previous jail sentences have been suspended in whole or in part by Spencer at the request of City Atty. Jack Travis.
Travis told the court Friday he would make no further recommendations concerning penalties and Spencer levied the maximum penalty after reminding those in court he had promised future Freedom Riders the full penalty.
Meanwhile, four earlier riders gained their freedom Friday. Two paid fines and two posted appeal bonds.

Those paying fines were Joe Henry Griffith, 26, a white student at Cornell University from Ithaca, N. Y., and Charles A. Haynie, 24, of Ithaca, another white Cornell student.
The fines paid were $170 each, decreased by $30 from the amount fixed by the court because they allowed $3 credit for each day served in jail.
Posting bonds were Paul David Deitrich, 29, a Washington white man, and Tom S. Green, 22, a white student at Cornell from Ithaca, N. Y.

Goldwater said it was "truly frightening" that the administration does not know what its domestic program proposals will cost. He said it is his belief these proposals will add $60 billion to taxpayers' bills in the next five years.
"The New Frontier wants it both ways," he said. "It wants the greatest space and defense program ever contemplated and it wants the greatest welfare state program at the same time."

Goldwater accused the Kennedy administration of clamping down on the flow of information.

an over-all design to rub out freedom and control the world, Goldwater said, they have been able to "call the tune while we dance."
"They select the areas of conflict and we hurry to them with weakness rather than with our effective weapons. They use whatever set of ground rules that happen to suit the circumstances and we are forced to comply," he said.

"We have been swatting one fly at a time and now the room is full of flies. We have been content with a patchwork, outmoded for foreign policy which reeks of hesitation and uncertainty and ineptitude and which rests on an almost infantile belief that—short of a clearly defined shooting war with Russia—we can expect our adversary to negotiate and deal with a semblance of honor."

Goldwater said Kennedy had done a "disservice to the American people by 'getting into the act' in the proposed exchange of tractors for Cuban invasion prisoners. He said the American people had been waked up by the danger of Fidel Castro by the invasion disaster.

"However, I firmly believe that the last thing they expected was the spectacle of our government sanctioning a response to the blackmail demands of a Communist dictator against whom they were united as never before," he said. "Any way you slice it, this presented the world with a picture of American people scrambling around to dig up the price to pay off a bush league tyrant on his own terms."

"It is true that we owe a debt to those Cuban patriots who fought to free their native land with ineffective and misleading help from the United States, but we own them more than to strengthen their enslavement so that he (Castro) can push his subversive designs throughout the Western Hemisphere."

Red Chinese Taking Over In Albania

GENEVA (UPI) — Diplomatic dispatches said Friday that Communist China is threatening to replace Soviet influence in Albania, the small but strategic satellite on the Adriatic Sea.
The Russians are being squeezed out as the result of an ideological quarrel between Albanian Communist Chief Enver Hoxha and the Kremlin, the dispatches said, and as the Soviets leave, the Chinese are moving in to gain their first foothold in Europe.

Eight Soviet submarines are reported to have left the Soviet base on the island of Saseño off the Albanian coast. The move was reported to have followed an Albanian demand to vacate the base, which China may take over.

Another report told of friction between Albania and the powerful Soviet Embassy in the capital, Tirana. It said the Soviet military attaché left after Albanian charges of espionage. The Albanian military attaché in Moscow also was reported to have left for the same reasons.

STEVENSON FINDS

Anti-Castro Action Opposed By Latins

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson got a friendly reception from Uruguayan officials Friday while leaving students called a mass meeting to protest U. S. Cuban policy.
The student move was the first hostile reaction encountered by President Kennedy's special representative since he began an 18-day South American tour last Sunday.

Ambassador Stevenson, U. S. chief delegate to the United Nations, is attempting to line up support for Kennedy's alliance-for-progress program aimed at combatting the spread of communism by raising economic standards in the Western Hemisphere.

Stevenson arrived from Buenos Aires in a pouring rain. Government officials and newsmen were almost the only people at the airport and streets were almost deserted as his motorcade drove into the city.
The first outward anti-U. S. sign was an announcement in the Communist newspaper El Popular that an open air meeting would be held in front of National University to "repudiate the Stevenson mission." The meeting was arranged by Uruguayan supporters of Cuba's Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Stevenson continued to stress that his main purpose is to line up concrete proposals for the July 15 meeting of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council at Punta del Este, a Uruguayan seaside resort.

A high Uruguayan official said, however, that Stevenson brought up the Cuban question and that he and Haedo "discussed in broad terms the Cuban crisis and the general situation in the Caribbean."

The source added that discussions included the Dominican Republic.
Both sides declined to divulge details of the talks but it is known Uruguayan officials, like officials Stevenson talked with in Venezuela and Argentina, presently oppose any joint or drastic action against the Castro regime.

Despite the pro-Castro rally, Uruguayan Communists have been restrained lately and the government reportedly feels the Cuban crisis will gradually calm down if there is no new aggravation.
Stevenson leaves early Saturday for Brazil where he will confer with the unpredictable President Janio Quadros, who has been vague on where he stands in regard to Castro.

85 Traffic Violators Fined In City

Results of the Monroe police department's crackdown on traffic violators showed up again yesterday in a city court docket that carried a total of 85 fines levied in traffic court.

Assistant Chief of Police George Woods added yesterday that he wanted the public to take particular notice to the 15 miles per hour speed limits in both Bernstein and Forsythe parks.

"We plan to really enforce the speed limits within the park boundaries," Woods stated. "These are not new speed limits, but have been there all the time. Violations of those speed limits, especially now with children playing in and out of the roadways, will always carry a fine," he emphasized.

During yesterday's court docket, Judge W. M. Harper fined 40 persons for speeding, 20 for running red lights, 11 for reckless driving, eight for other traffic violations, one for failure to yield right of way, two for operating vehicles without valid state driver's license in their possessions, one for hit and run driving and two for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Those fined for DWI included James H. McClain, 26, of Crosssett, Ark., $425 and costs; and Thomas Miller, 33 of 111 Vernon St., $300 or 270 days in jail.

In other action, Bertha Mae Fields, 22, Negro of 49-B Texas Ave., Monroe, received a total of 180 compulsory days in jail on three traffic counts. She was sentenced to 60 days each for reckless driving, hit and run driving and operating a motor vehicle without a valid state driver's license in her possession.

Colonel To Face Air Force Trial

in view of the developing dangerous situation at the tower."

Sheppard and Stark were serving under Banks.
Sheppard was commander of the 4604th Support Squadron at Otis Air Force Base, Mass., and Stark was in acting command at the time of the tower's collapse.

Banks is a native of Raleigh, W. Va. Sheppard comes from Berea, Ohio. Stark is a native of Altoona, N. Y.

In addition to the formal Air Force investigation which preceded Friday's action, a congressional committee has held an extensive hearing, questioning both Air Force officials and contractors who built or were familiar with the construction of the tower.

Erected on a steel tripod in the open ocean, the radar structure's resemblance to an oil well rig brought the informal name "Texaco tower."

Because of previous damage which let it sway and vibrate, this particular tower had become known as "Old Shaky" to those who served on it.

Chief of Detectives M. B. Pearce identified the two as Amos C. Brown, 20, of Jackson, student at Morehouse College in Atlanta; and James M. Hopkins Jr., 19, of Jackson, student at Mary Holmes Junior College, Negro school at West Point, Miss.

Pearce said Capt. J. L. Ray arrested the two at the City Zoo in Livingston Park after they refused his order to move on.

The action was similar to methods used in arresting 98 "Freedom Riders" now in jail. They also were convicted of breach of the peace.

Air Terminals' Speed Limit Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Trans World Airlines Friday ordered its jets to observe new lower speed limits around major air terminals.

The speed restrictions were put into effect in accordance with a request from Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb E. Halaby. Halaby has asked all airlines operating jet-powered equipment to participate in a voluntary speed restriction program as a means of lessening collision danger.

TWA said its jets will not exceed 292 miles per hour at altitudes below 14,500 feet within 50 miles of a destination airport. Approach speeds will be held to a maximum 230 mph and planes instructed to enter holding patterns will attain specified holding speeds at least three minutes before entering the pattern.

South Korea Junta Acts On Reforms

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korea's military junta Friday announced plans to strengthen the nation's defenses, aid students with scholarships, and crack down on prostitution.

As the 32-member council moved to tighten its rule and push through reforms, there were indications of a slight thaw in the initial American coolness to the military leaders who overthrew the ROK civilian government May 16.

Acting Defense Minister Shin Sung Kyun warned of "indirect" aggression and said a new defense policy was under preparation by the junta and would be disclosed soon.

He said the main way to combat indirect aggression was to build up South Korea's economy. Education Minister Col. Moon Hi Suk of the Korean Marines told student representatives from 66 colleges and universities that

Disillusioned Rider

Any movement aimed at violating the law and disrupting orderly processes is certain to attract habitual law violators, hoodlums, malcontents and a few super-conscientious persons who believe they must become martyrs to save the world from one situation or another. The so-called "freedom riders" who have been pouring into Alabama and Mississippi are made up chiefly of these elements. They are being assisted by professional agitators.

It was not surprising when a disillusioned white minister severed connections with the "freedom riders" because "they talked openly of atheism, communism and police records."

In Jackson, Miss., the Rev. Richard Gleason, who has done social work among Chicago Negro delinquents for three years, told newsmen at police headquarters:

"I advise anyone thinking of joining the riders to look them over carefully. I had expected high type people. I am disappointed with their caliber. I will not knowingly associate with any questionable group."

"Officers began to tell me about the persons arrested in my party. I went back to the cell and asked them about the records. They said, 'Yes, what's wrong with that?'"

Police said several riders had police records after sit-ins in the south, while another had been arrested in 1948 on theft charges and a second had served five months for absence without leave from Fort Dix, N.J.

Former President Harry Truman, generally a leftist, who vetoed a 1950 law aimed at curbing communist activities by requiring them to disclose their membership and who described anti-communist movements as "red herring" activities, has little to say in behalf of northern agitators who try to force integration on the south.

Truman recently advised two young northerners interested in southern desegregation to "sweep your own yard first."

"It's easier beavers that cause all the trouble," the former President told newsmen. "Nine times out of 10 their own back yard needs cleaning worse. They give me a pain in the neck."

When told that two anti-segregationists had affiliated themselves with a group conducting sit-ins in the New York office of the American Broadcasting-Paramount Theaters, Inc., in an effort to desegregate Austin, Tex., movie theaters, Truman said:

"Oh, you mean interfering with somebody else's business and hoping to get a little publicity out of it."

Even Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who was once quoted as saying on television, "I don't know just what action we will take," after being asked what the "freedom riders" would do next either has also been a little "disillusioned" or has been advised by his brother, President Kennedy to ease off in his alleged help in promoting the rides.

It is hard to justify countenancing the activities of law violators, even unofficially, and whatever sympathy there may have been for the "freedom riders" at the beginning has about evaporated.

Long Sees Light

At long last, Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana has "seen the light" — or felt the heat — in regard to the federal education proposal. He now sees the same danger that most of us have seen from the beginning. This, at least, is good.

Commenting in his weekly letter to Louisiana constituents Long said:

"When I first came to Washington, I strongly supported federal aid to education, because it appeared to carry with it a reasonable assurance that it would never result in federal interference in the operation of our Louisiana schools."

"In recent years, that assurance has vanished like morning mists. Consequently, I was forced, with great reluctance, to change my opinion and oppose such measures. In the present political atmosphere, there are too many dangers inherent in the proposed federal aid to education bill. While it is not in the bill at present, it seems inevitable that one of the first moves toward federal intervention would be an amendment or rider withholding funds from any state where racial segregation exists. Since Louisiana clearly would not accept such a restriction, the time would soon come when our state would have to pay its share of school-aid taxes to the federal government—but be denied its share, or any share, of the money."

"So, with deep regret, I continue to oppose the federal aid-to-education bill. I feel I have no other choice."

Most of us in the south have seen the federal aid bill from the beginning for what it is; a measure to gain domination over the schools of the entire nation, taking control away from the states. Furthermore, if the federal government, by some miracle, should grant aid without demanding control—which it will not do—there still would be no advantage in federal aid. Federal aid would still mean either less schooling for the same amount of money or the same amount of school for more money. It takes more money to accomplish anything when we give it to the federal government and then get a part of it back than it does to let the state or local governments administer it.

Senator Long should have known this long ago. This is one thing that he does not yet seem to realize, since it is with such "deep regret" that he opposes the aid-to-education bill.

On the matter of federal control, of which he now says he sees a danger, he also should have realized that long ago. The fact that he did not causes one to wonder whether he has finally seen the light or has simply felt the heat applied by his constituents in this state.

Even if he is merely feeling the heat, it is still a hopeful sign. That is the only way some members of congress are prodded into wise courses of action—when the people rise up and tell them what to do.

If still more of our senators and representatives either see the light or feel the heat in regard to federal aid to education we may still be able to defeat or hold in abeyance this threat to our free education. Votes on the right side are good, even if it takes the heat to put them there.

U.S., Russia To Cooperate

Getting Together On No. 1 Killer—Heart Disease—Despite Many Dangerous Differences

There are many dangerous differences between the U. S. and Russia, but remarkably they are getting together on their No. 1 killer — heart disease.

Under the scientific and medical research accord signed last year, the two countries are negotiating an agreement to exchange heart specialists to conduct research in this disease that is taking a steadily mounting toll in both lands.

Last year heart ailments claimed more than one million lives in the U. S., such deaths totaled 916,000 as against 898,000 in 1959.

This latest development in U. S. - Russian relations is unusual on a number of counts, foremost among them:

Joint teams of U. S. and Soviet heart experts will spend several or more years extensively studying the inhabitants of selected towns of 1,000 to 3,000 with "high incidence rates" of heart disease in southern Russia.

U. S. specialists will be sent to leading Soviet heart research centers, particularly to study their work in treating cardiovascular disorders by brain therapy. Little of that is now being done in this country.

Soviet experts will join the staff of the National Heart Institute, one of the eight research centers of the world — famed National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, noted heart specialist who treated former President Eisenhower, played an important role in arranging this significant medical research exchange. Recently, the Bostonian was elected a member of a distinguished Soviet scientific organization.

In the past several years, Dr. White and other U. S. physicians exchanged visits with Soviet doctors, and during these trips laid the basis for the heart research program.

MORE TO COME — MAYBE!

Dr. James Watt, National Heart Institute director, disclosed this at a meeting with the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the NIH budget.

If the joint heart research plan works out satisfactorily, it will be expanded into other medical fields, especially cancer. As in the U. S., cancer takes a high death toll in Russia.

"Is it your judgment that our country stands to gain from this kind of exchange?" asked Senator Lister Hill, D-Ala., committee chairman and a leading congressional champion of medical research. Under his forceful urging, funds for this purpose have been increased for a number of years.

In 1960 Hill persuaded Congress to vote $547 million for NIH. This year he is seeking to increase that to $670 million, with another $200 million for hospital construction under the Hill - Burton Act.

"We sincerely believe there is a good chance the U. S. can gain much from this medical exchange program," said Dr. Watt. "There are almost too many clues to heart disease for U. S. scientists alone to check. All these clues play some role in this ailment, but how big a role we don't know."

For example: We believe we can benefit from studying Soviet research on the brain. The National Heart Council has discussed this at great length and has felt it is one area we should give considerably more attention. The Russians have put greater emphasis on the relation of the brain to heart disease than we have. Soviet scientists contend they can produce precisely the same effects with mental conditioning that we obtain by drug therapy. We would like to find out if that is true.

Already, the National Institutes of Health is adopting a Russian plan and establishing a number of centers throughout the U. S. where animals of various types will be available for research purposes.

"All in all," Dr. Watt told the committee, "we have had some very productive discussions with the Russians. Our talks with members of the Soviet Academy of Medical Science led to the proposal to work with them on detailed heart studies in certain towns. We will send a group of U. S. researchers to Russia later this year, and they will work with Soviet scientists in analyzing mortality rates, susceptibility to heart disease and various other contributing factors."

In addition to that, U. S. heart specialists will work in leading Soviet research centers, and Russian scientists will come here for research work at NIH."

NEW SCHEME — Premier Khrushchev has a new stratagem for gaining control of the United Nations.

It's a not - very ingenious variation of his so - called "troika" plan to set up a three - headed secretary general consisting of a representative of the east, west and the neutralist nations.

Under Khrushchev's latest proposal, the same thing would be done by rotating the secretary generalship annually among the three groups.

The pudgy Kremlin ruler sprang this on President Kennedy in their Vienna talks.

The president has bluntly told Khrushchev the U. S. would never agree to a "triangular" UN secretary general. He asserted this had a "built-in" veto for the Soviet and is completely unacceptable.

The president also made it clear the U. S. is firmly supporting Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, whose term expires in 1962.

Khrushchev's reply was his rotation scheme.

While the president left no doubt he didn't think much of it, he didn't reject it outright. Instead, the president said he would discuss the matter with the other western leaders.

Secretary Rusk is flatly opposed. He told the president, "In some ways, this is worse than a three - headed secretary general. We can't possibly agree to it."

Khrushchev opened his second talk with the president, on Sunday, by inquiring, "Did you sleep well?"

"Very well," said the president. Later the president, in relating the incident, remarked, "I wonder if he thought he had scared me during our first discussion?"

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International
Today is Saturday, June 10, the 161st day of the year with 204 more in 1961.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter, Venus and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1776, the Continental Congress appointed a committee to draft a declaration of independence.

In 1898, the United States Marines began the invasion of Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1931, Mrs. Ernest Simpson was presented at court in Buckingham Palace and met the Prince of Wales for the first time. Six years later the prince turned king gave up his throne to marry Mrs. Simpson.

In 1959, the House subcommittee on legislative oversight made public records showing Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine had paid over $1,500 in hotel bills for presidential assistant Sherman Adams.

A thought for today: American writer Mark Twain said: "Every one is a moon and has a dark side which he never shows to anybody."

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Lest We Forget

Cuba Lost Sight Of In Excitement Of President's Visits

In the current excitement over Europe and President Kennedy's visits to Paris, Vienna, and London we lose sight of Cuba which is of equal if not greater importance at this moment. It is astonishing how those who accept a doctrine will not give up no matter what the historic evidence provides. This becomes particularly dangerous when great influences are brought to bear upon public opinion to promote a doctrine rather than historic truth. Herbert Matthews of "The New York Times" raised this issue when on May 3, he told students at the University of Michigan:

"... once Fidel Castro's regime was labeled Communist, for the most part it became almost impossible for the American journalists and editors to go against the overwhelming public opinion, although it was the press that created the hostile opinion—like Frankenstein's monster."

In a word, Fidel Castro and his associates were converted to Marxism by the American press! But were not many of them Marxists before the American press ever heard of their names? Herbert Matthews' viewpoint is worth looking at, for if applied to other countries, it could be said that Khrushchev was not a Communist until we accused him of being the head of the Communist Party by the American press, particularly by those who are nativists anti-Communist. On this theory, it could be said that Hitler was really not a Nazi but was manufactured into one by "The New York Times!"

Matthews adds a very interesting moral factor to his philosophy. In his Ann Arbor speech, he admitted that Cuba was becoming more and more dangerous to the United States. But he holds that it did not have to be that — that Cuba did not have to develop toward socialist and totalitarian lines. Regarding a Communist regime as one whose leaders are Communists and which takes orders from the Kremlin, Matthews holds that Cuba was not such — that is until the American press made it wicked.

But what about all the People's Republics? They started as coalition governments containing non-Communist elements. Czechoslovakia was an example of that until Jan Masaryk was either murdered or committed suicide. An effort was made to form such a coalition People's Republic in China during the days when "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell and General George Marshall were active there.

In a word, Herbert Matthews adopts a very narrow definition of a Communist regime — one that cannot be supported by the history of Communist growth either in Europe or in Asia. Even in Russia, when Lenin took control in the Smolny Institute in Petrograd, he was associated with non-Bolshevik elements. Leon Trotsky, for instance, was a Menshevik at the start and he became the second man in command.

Matthews said: "The American press made the mistake in trying to interpret the Cuban revolution in terms of our Anglo-Saxon, mature, democratic, and capitalistic way of life."

But that precisely is what Herbert Matthews has done, and it is interesting that he is so correct in analyzing the American attitude toward Leninist movements. Americans try to avoid regarding Communists as Communists on the assumption that no one can be quite so wicked. But there are now many Communists in the world and there are Communists in many governments. And one needs only to look at the fact squarely without apology. Certainly, those who are now in charge of Cuba call their government Socialist, which is the most that Khrushchev says about his.

According to "Editor and Publisher," Matthews' ended his speech at Ann Arbor with a statement that:

"The intense emotionalism with which the American press covered the executions following Castro's triumph has had a lasting adverse impact on American-Cuban relations."

SYLVIA PORTER

Foreign Invasion

United States Aid To Other Countries In That Category

On a Japanese - made bicycle, weaving through traffic of British, French and German automobiles, destined to write a column on a Swiss - made typewriter, your reporter recently made his way toward Capitol Hill where the newest secretary of state was making his pitch to the Senate Foreign Relations committee on the latest foreign aid bill.

From the reaction of the senators, this is going to be a year of major inquest into the pathology of the compulsive giveaway which has gripped our nation for so long.

The work of the early statesmen, Hamilton and Clay, who built self - sufficiency into the American system, has been wholly reversed. They worked, through tariffs and encouragement of manufacturers, to weave a taut fabric of American jobs, skills, fabricators, buyers and users.

But, today, it is all but impossible to buy a made-in-America bike, or typewriter; unusual to buy an American camera; unfashionable and uneconomical to buy an American motor car; almost prohibitive to build an American ship.

Why do our economists pretend that there's anything mysterious about rising unemployment in this country? Where are our jobs? Gone overseas!

The matter would be more understandable if a foreign tyrant were extracting this terrible toll on American economy. After all, Tito broke from Stalin because the latter was doing this to Yugoslavia. But we — ah, Freud! — are doing it to ourselves. And the disease has reached an intensity and complexity, from Lend Lease in 1940 to this latest bill for fiscal year 1962, that we no longer know what it is we're doing.

How much for foreign aid? See if you can figure out what Mr. Rusk was talking about. Some of the senators were doubtful.

"The legislation calls for . . . authority to the president to borrow from the treasury $900 million in fiscal year 1962, and $1.6 billion in each of the succeeding four fiscal years derived from repayments on certain outstanding loans. The authorization of $1.6 billion in annual appropriations."

Does this include the $600 million set aside for Latin America? Why borrow from the treasury? Does this compromise the constitutional duty of Congress to appropriate funds for government spending? Are we trying to make the sum seem smaller by looking at them through the wrong end of the telescope? Is a "loan" really a loan when it is repaid in soft currency? Is foreign aid a disguised, therefore unwholesome, subsidy to American industry? Does the Pentagon, and do manufacturers, use foreign aid as a means of dumping obsolete machinery overseas? What happens follow this line of thought by Mr. Rusk?

"Instead of considering food 'an agricultural problem,' we must consider it . . . the most effective way possible to support our foreign policy."

We don't know the costs, the moral and economic effects at home, and we don't even know how many foreign nations we will aid with foreign aid. Mr. Rusk told the senators:

"... over 40 new nations have attained independence since the war, 19 since the beginning of last year."

Of the senators at the hearing only one, Wiley of Wisconsin, seemed to welcome the bill. He saw it as a legitimate aid to American industry and agriculture. But to paraphrase and digest the criticism of other senators who were present:

Chairman Fulbright: Absurd shipments of useless materials are still being made. The aid is often spread too thin to be helpful. All these new nations cannot possibly set up viable economies. Sparkman: Disappointed that point four (technical assistance) has not been more successful.

Humphrey: Skeptical about the administrative set - up.

Aliken: Skeptical about the fiscal set - up.

Morse: No aid program since the Marshall Plan has been successful, and all have been hurtful to American economy and prestige.

Symington: Skeptical about the use of military aid.

Capewhart: Demanded, as did Morse, that the committee examine the bill sentence by sentence, item by item, and that the secretary keep himself available for questioning.

But even with skepticism, criticism, denunciation and opposition, it is doubtful if Congress can control the spread, or reform the administration, of foreign aid.

SOLON CHARGES

Probe Is Stalled By White House

WASHINGTON AP—Rep. Gordon H. Scherer, R-Ohio, says instructions from the White House have stalled an investigation of how a man convicted of contempt of Congress got a federal scholarship soon after the trial.

In a statement in today's Congressional Record, Scherer says the National Science Foundation, on the basis of orders from above, has denied the House Committee on Un-American Activities a look at the recommendations on which the award to Edward Yellin was based.

Scherer, a member of the Un-American Activities group, says Yellin, at a committee hearing in Gary, Ind., in 1949, refused to answer questions concerning his part in the colonization activities of the Communist party apparatus.

Scherer said the contempt conviction, on charges growing out of Yellin's refusal to talk, came in federal court at Hammond, Ind., in 1950.

Eleven months later, on March 15, Scherer says, the scholarship was granted.

The information the committee has been denied, Scherer adds, is the recommendation to the National Science Foundation from officials of the University of Illinois where Yellin was a student at the time of the trial. He says Yellin who had a mechanical engineering degree from Colorado State University, attended Illinois under a Ford Foundation grant which was made after his refusal to answer committee questions.

Scherer relates that Yellin was suspended from the Illinois graduate school for 10 days during his contempt of Congress trial, but was reinstated by a board of professors.

He adds that a University of Illinois official justified the reinstatement by saying the conviction was "only a misdemeanor and compared it to a traffic violation." The Illinois official was not named.

"The next disclosure was the straw that broke the camel's back," the Ohioan says in referring to the grant by the National Science Foundation.

"It is astounding," he goes on, that "Congress, which created the National Science Foundation and whose duty it is to make any necessary changes in the law, cannot have the files of persons who are granted taxpayers' money."

"In recent years the Communist apparatus in the United States has secretly placed highly educated, dedicated young Communists in the assembly lines of industrial plants in this country for the purpose of promoting Communist activities in labor and converting the working people to the communist cause," the statement says.

"It relates that Yellin had worked as an electrician's helper in the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., without disclosing that he had an extensive education, including study at the City College of New York and the University of Michigan."

Communist "colonizers," the congressman says, when applying for factory jobs "fail to disclose their educational training and qualifications in order not to arouse the suspicion of the employers or of the man who works next to them on the assembly line whom it is their job to indoctrinate."

Prison Official Says TV Cause Of Delinquency

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal prison official said Friday violence on TV is a cause of juvenile delinquency, makes it harder to recruit good police officers, and hurts morale of those already in law enforcement service.

James V. Bennett, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, gave those views to a Senate subcommittee which heard also that TV officials have ordered more blood-and-thunder written into programs to jack up viewer ratings.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, told his fellow senators the hearings will bring out the calculated use of violence to attract viewers.

Bennett told the subcommittee modern television is something like the old-fashioned street corner pitchman who attracted and entertained his audience with card tricks and magic while he sold them snake oil remedies."

FOUND SHOT IN CAR

Couple Are Slain On Vacation Trip

SELIGMAN, Ariz. (UPI)—Sobbing children standing beside the highway Friday led authorities to the U. S. 66 murders of a vacationing Oklahoma couple 13 miles west of here.

The bodies of J. B. Welch of Spencer, Okla., a driver for Transcontinental Truck Line in Oklahoma City, and his wife, Utha Marie, 31, were found in their vacation-gear packed 1959 car beside the road.

Both had been shot in the head by what sheriff's deputies said appeared to be small-caliber bullets, possibly from a .22 pistol or rifle.

The Welchses were murdered during the night while their four sons, Jimmy, 12, Tommy, 8, Billy, 9, and Johnny, 5, slept in a pup tent about three feet from the car.

Yet, the children said they heard no gunshots and did not know their parents were dead until Johnny peeped from the tent at daylight. He wondered to the tent brother Jimmy what was the matter with their mother because she appeared to have something on her face.

They found it was blood. Their mother was dead in the front seat. Jimmy said he lifted his father's head in the back seat and found that he, too, had been killed.

Several cars passed the youngsters as they tried to signal for aid. Then Dan Cramer of Riverside, Calif., and Jere Eagle pulled up beside the children.

The men said the children were crying and one of them sobbed: "Somebody shot Mommy and Daddy."

Cramer and Eagle flagged down motorists and asked for authorities.

Jimmy said that the family had been vacation-bound for California to visit his grandmother in Fresno. They planned to go to Colorado Springs, then home to Oklahoma City.

Investigators found Mrs. Welch's purse. They said expensive rings were still on her finger, seemingly ruling out robbery. Blankenship said it appeared Mrs. Welch was killed as she slept and that Welch was shot as he attempted to rise from the back seat.

Citizens' Council Shows Film At Friday Meeting

The Citizens' Council of Ouachita Parish climaxed its meeting Friday night with a plea by Rev. H. L. Driskell, Council president, for all citizens interested in preserving states' rights and state sovereignty to join some organization for this purpose.

The plea came after the approximately 50 persons attending the meeting viewed the film "Operation Abolition," which shows student riots against the Committee in San Francisco in 1960.

Rev. Driskell also distributed petitions for "our representative in Congress to initiate and or support the impeachment of Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U. S. Supreme Court."

The petitions cite some of the instances in which "92 per cent of the time Earl Warren gave aid and comfort to America's mortal enemy, the Communist conspiracy."

It listed six specific cases in which Warren voted to uphold decisions beneficial to the Communists.

Rev. Driskell relegated the inroads of Communism in America to the integration struggle. He called on all to "go to your knees and ask God to save the nation from the peril it faces. God, in answer to prayer, changes things."

JFK Swims To Help Ease Back Injury

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy walked on crutches to a pool Friday and went swimming in the rain. Both the crutches and the swimming are intended to help ease and mend his strained back.

"He is improving," Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, told reporters. Apparently the therapy is beginning to work. Hatcher reported that Kennedy was feeling better and was in good spirits.

The President slept well Thursday night after flying down from Washington and getting his first quick dip in the pool. Hatcher said, in fact, he said, Kennedy slept around the clock, from 10:15 to 10:15.

After getting up, Kennedy talked with his personal secretary, Evelyn Lincoln, by direct telephone line to Washington. Then about noon he got onto the crutches and made his way about 200 yards to the heated, outdoor salt water pool at the ocean-side villa of old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman. He is spending the weekend resting there.

Hatcher said Kennedy hauled himself around the large pool with a plain overhead stroke. The water temperature was around 85 to 90. His personal physician, Dr. Janet Travell, looked on. She told Hatcher her patient could go through motions painlessly in the water that would have caused distress outside the pool.

Dr. Travell has ordered swimming in a warm water pool as a means of bringing the injured back around to normal.

No specialist has been called in for Kennedy.

The chief executive, who has suffered from back trouble of a different nature in the past, strained his lower back while shoveling dirt at a ceremonial tree planting in Ottawa, Canada, May 16. The injury was kept secret during his trip to Paris, Vienna and Rome.

LAOS CONFERENCE

U.S. Note Fails To End Deadlock

GENEVA (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko got a note from Washington and an hour-long argument from U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman Friday. Both were aimed at stopping the advance of pro-Communist troops in Laos and reviving the 14-nation conference in Geneva.

There was no indication either note or argument had any effect. A Soviet spokesman said after the meeting there still were difficulties at the conference. In addition, more reports had arrived earlier in the day of a withdrawal by royal Laotian forces under pressure of Communist-led troops in Laos.

Harriman would say nothing about prospects for getting the stalled conference going again. He said merely: "I delivered the note and we discussed it."

The note carried President Kennedy's approval. It recalled that he and Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed in Vienna last Sunday on the need for an effective cease-fire.

On Wednesday pro-Communist troops scored a victory in Laos. They killed 10 royal Laotian troops at Padong and forced 1,500 others to retire about six miles.

Since then Western delegates have refused to hold conference sessions. They say they came to the conference only on condition the fighting stop, and violations have been reported steadily ever since.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, who hopes to head a neutralist government in Laos, told a news conference his side now occupies 80 per cent of the country. The forces backing him are largely the units of the Pathet Lao, under Communist leadership.

Western sources dispute the prince's figure, but concede his forces were advancing toward Vientiane — the administrative capital—when the cease fire was proclaimed May 3. Since then, they have shifted their attention to cleaning up pockets of government troops surrounded earlier.

Parts Of Body Found Wrapped In Newspapers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Parts of a woman's body wrapped in newspapers, were found in southeast Portland Thursday. Police sought the missing head and torso Friday in the hope of identifying the victim.

They thought it was a relatively young woman, slain perhaps 24 to 48 hours before the dismembered pieces were discovered.

A housewife, Eglah Lilly, made the first grisly find. As she picked up a package in her yard, wrapped in a newspaper, a foot with nail polish on the toenails rolled out.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Peach Queen Publicizing Crop In State

RUSTON (Special) — Queen Dixie Gem X, Billie Sue Riordan of Bernice, began her travels Wednesday to help publicize Louisiana tree-ripened peaches all over the state.

She will be accompanied by business and civic representatives who will help her tell the story of the tasty fruit now being picked in orchards all over north-central Louisiana.

First stop on the tour is New Orleans, where the queen will meet with the Chamber of Commerce and make personal appearances in grocery stores in the New Orleans area on Thursday.

Preston Hardage, president of the Ruston Chamber of Commerce, will go to Shreveport with the queen and the sales group on June 10.

Charles R. Hightower, Lincoln parish tax assessor, will accompany Miss Riordan to Baton Rouge on June 12 and 13, and the next day Ragan Madden, district attorney, will accompany Miss Riordan in Lake Charles.

Clarence Faulk, festival chairman, will go along to Monroe and El Dorado and Mayor T. C. Beasley will represent the city on the trip to Alexandria on June 19.

County Agent F. O. LeVasseur will go along on all the marketing expeditions to help arrange for interviews and appearances on television and radio.

In New Orleans Miss Riordan will appear on two TV stations, visit the mayor, newspapers, talk with wholesalers and marketing specialists and others who sell Louisiana peaches.

Vandals Get 60 Days In Jail For School Break-In

RUSTON (Special) — Vandals who tore up four automatic coin machines at Ruston High School were given 60-day jail terms in city court here for the destruction over a week ago.

David Foster, 17, Woodrow Lee, 17, and J. D. McCormick were each given identical 60-day terms at hard labor for criminal damage to property.

A fourth principal in the vandalism will be tried as a juvenile. The four entered Ruston High school through a window on the night of May 26, and completely destroyed a candy machine and damaged three cold-drink machines.

massing at Manassas Junction, east across the Blue Ridge mountains and about 35 miles southwest of Washington.

Another Union army under Brig. Gen. Irvin McDowell was being whipped into shape in northern Virginia across the Potomac from Washington.

McClellan was restless and pushing into the western counties of Virginia which later would become West Virginia. Patterson was being urged to move south across the Potomac but seemed reluctant. McDowell, under the most pressure, began to feel out the Confederate forces opposite him.

CREATING A GENERAL

He sent a reconnaissance force on June 17 along the railroad from Alexandria, Va., toward Leesburg. Brig. Gen. Robert C. Schenck, a political general, led the forces with the 1st Ohio. At Vienna, Va., he ran into a Confederate force led by Col. Maxcy Gregg, who, with his South Carolina regiment, was out looking for information about the Federals. The Confederates opened fire with six-pounders. The fight was short, the Federals falling back and losing eight killed, four wounded and nine missing.

Schenck had been a congressman from Ohio and had stumped southern Illinois for Lincoln in 1860. He had no military experience. Lincoln called him to the White House soon after the war started and asked: "We're having a devil of a time just now, Schenck, can you fight?"

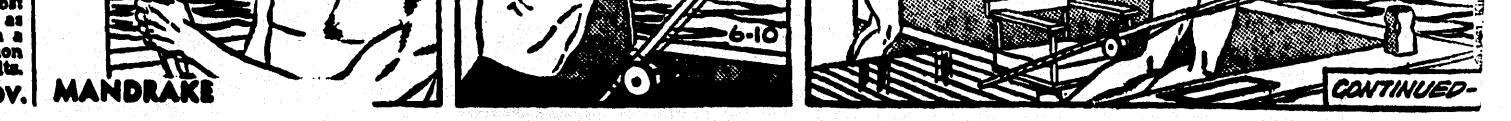

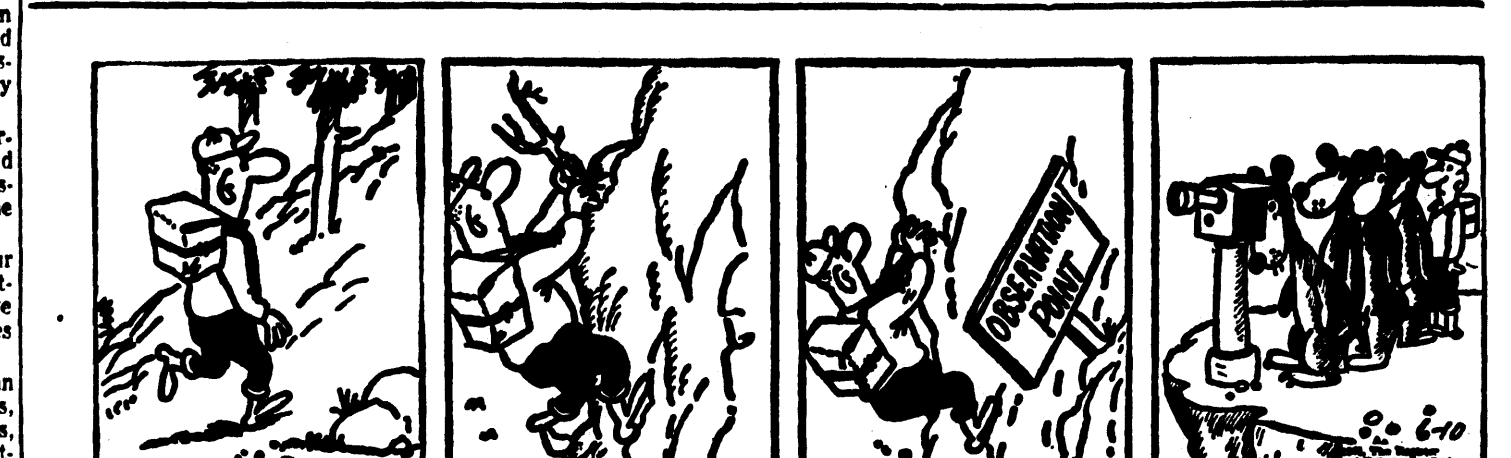

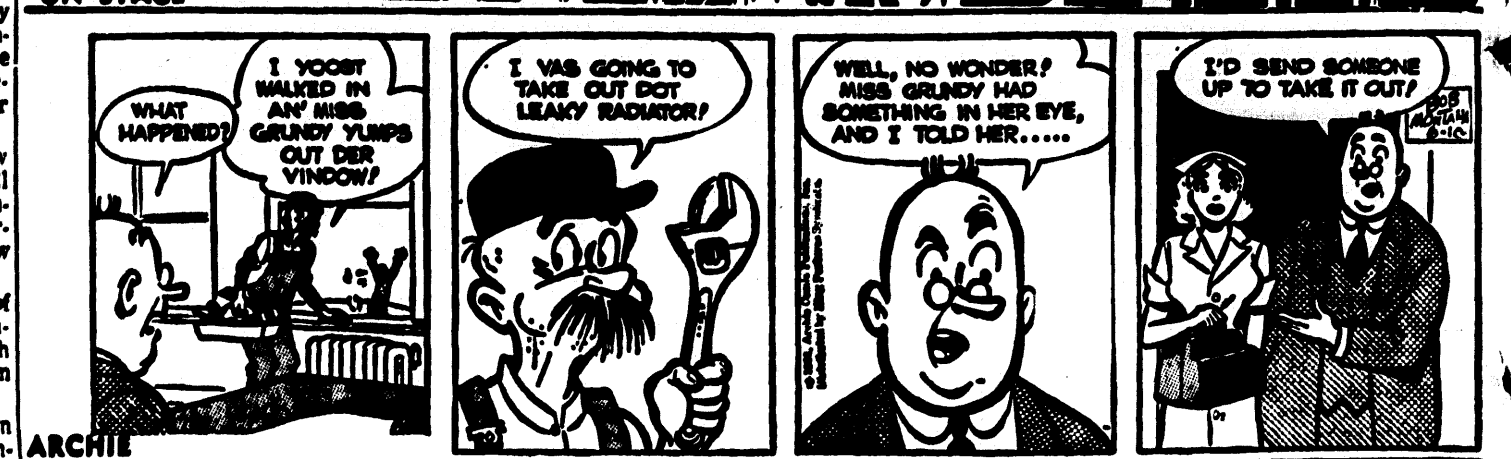

"I don't know, sir, but I can try," Schenck replied. "And I am sure you will succeed. You have it in your blood, and I am going to give you a chance to try. You shall be made a brigadier general."

Schenck left with a commission. Often in the Civil War, a general got his start with no more ceremony than that, even if completely devoid of military experience.

Schenck served with credit until 1863 when he resigned to go back to Congress.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Richard Rodgers has taken an intense interest in Diaphann Carroll's career. A few days before he left for England he had cocktails with her and told her that although he had nothing specific in mind at the moment he hoped to do a Broadway show with her in the starring role. And after he'd been in London only a week, the composer had his secretary call her to say that he'd found "a writer of great interest" who might tailor a musical comedy to fit Diaphann's talents.

Pals of ex-Queen Soraya say that her wedding to Hugh O'Brian might depend on her willingness—or unwillingness—to put her father on the spot. Her dad is still in business with her former husband, the Shah of Iran, and royal circles believe the Shah would be extremely irked if his discarded empress became plain Mrs. O'Brian, wife of a television hero.

Adam Wade, ably assisted by the prom set, broke all weekend records at the Roundtable. He topped the grosses racked up by Red Nichols' Five Pennies and the Dukes of Dixieland.

Princess Grace of Monaco, due for an official visit to Ireland, has had four fabulous gowns made for the excursion. The Givenchy and Desses salons in Paris got the order.

TIN PAN ALLEY'S BIG QUESTION: Is Dean Martin going to stay on with Capitol Records, or follow the Rat Pack to Reprise? Betty Hutton, who hasn't been seen on the screen for years, is being talked of for the role of Aimee Semple McPherson, the colorful evangelist of the twenties. Explaining Aimee to the present generation will be like explaining Russ Columbo, if that picture ever happens.

MONIQUE VAN VOOREN PLANNED to star in an off-Broadway production of "Rain" in October, but she may decide against it because of Marilyn Monroe's scheduled performance in the role of Sadie Thompson in a television version of the same play. Quoth Monique: "I'm afraid that if Marilyn and I attempt the same part at the same time, reviewers will be more interested in our anatomical measurements than in our acting methods." (Oh, stop worrying, Monique! Most drama critics don't admit they ever watch television.)

Charlie Byrd, the great jazz and classical guitarist, ought to be well worth interviewing since he returned from his three month tour of Latin America for the President's Special International Program for Cultural Presentations. Charlie is full of provocative news—jazz and political—about our South of the Border neighbors... The "reformed" Sarah Churchill hopes to bring her new touring stock company to the United States later this year.

LYNN BURKE, WHO WON two Olympic gold medals in Rome, may be the show biz successor to Esther Williams. She's been chosen as the star of the Aquacade opening this month at Flushing Meadows—and she's a blonde beauty with some TV experience... Multi-millionaire Huntington Hartford took China Gerard to see Mamie Van Doren at the Latin Quarter. China used to toil as a showgirl on the same stage.

Lana Turner is saying frightfully nice things about Elmer Zimbalist Jr., her co-star in "By Love Possessed." Apparently an expert on grandmothers, Lana declares, "He's got the charm, profile and inner fire that used to drive grandma mad."

Playboy magazine is negotiating to buy Joe Glaser's Associated Booking Corp. The selling price is reportedly in the neighborhood of $3,000,000... William Holden's daughter, Virginia, will make New York her headquarters while she studies drama.

REMEDIAL READING

Noted Educators Set At Workshop

Four widely known educators in the field of remedial reading will be guest lecturers at the workshop to be held this summer at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Recognized as authorities in their field, the professors are Dr. A. Stierl-Artley, director of the Child Study Clinic at the University of Missouri; Dr. William Eller, director of the reading department at the State University of Iowa; Dr. Emory P. Bliesmer, director of the McGuffey Reading Clinic at the University of Virginia; and Mrs. Eloise Dent, associate director of the Mississippi Southern reading clinic.

The workshop will be offered for six weeks beginning June 19.

COURSE DIRECTOR
Miss Sarah Nell Taylor, reading consultant at the College, will direct the workshop to be held in the Panhellenic House by the Special Education Center.

The guest lecturers will appear at two sessions during their appearances at Northeast State. During the morning sessions, persons may attend by permission from the workshop director.

Sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Reading Association, the afternoon sessions will be open to the public.

Professors Artley and Eller are noted for their research regarding remedial reading. Mrs. Dent is recognized as an outstanding instructor of individual students for remedial reading.

The lecturers will appear according to the following schedule: Dr. Artley, June 21; Dr. Eller, June 27-28; Dr. Bliesmer, July 21; and Mrs. Dent, July 12.

Requests by public school teachers for enrollment in the workshop have exceeded the quota. Dr. Leveille Haynes, director of special education, said today.

The workshop will be divided into two parts: a lecture period that deals with the theory and practice in remedial reading and a practicum in which students taking the course will work with children that have reading problems.

Valley Scout Encampment Slated Sunday

The annual summer encampment for Boy Scouts of the Ouachita Valley Council begins Sunday at Camp Ki-Ro-Li with approximately 120 boys expected for the first week.

The encampment will continue for four weeks with a possibility of a fifth week session indicated by the number of applications. Jase Johnson, Council field executive and director for this summer's session, has announced.

During the second through fourth weeks, indications point to about 150 scouts, Johnson said.

ASSISTING
Working with Johnson in handling the camp will be Gene Hagen waterfront director; Jack H. Pankey, assistant waterfront director; and Jack E. Pankey, council executive. In addition 15 scout leaders will handle official capacities during the sessions.

Scouts from throughout the 15-parish area of the Ouachita Valley Council will be in attendance. The area extends east to the Mississippi River, north to the Lincoln-Claiborne line, and south to the Concordia-Avoyle Parish line.

All boys participating in the summer camp must pass a physical examination, which will be handled by Dr. R. T. Armstrong, Jr. He will be assisted each Sunday by two physicians.

A trained dietitian will be in charge of the cooking during the encampment.

2 Students Get Prizes In Essay Contest At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Prizes have been awarded to two Louisiana Tech students who wrote essays on the role of Alcoholics Anonymous under sponsorship of the Intercollegiate Association for the Study of the Alcohol Problem.

The Tech students who were winners in the first stage of the writing series are Dallas Baillio, Jr., of 1431 Doris Street, Shreveport, and Jerry Harris of Pineville, who have received checks for $15 and $10, respectively.

Baillio's subject was "Alcoholics Anonymous — An Asset to the Community." The entry by Harris was titled "A Vanguard of Civilization."

One of the Tech winners, to be announced later, is eligible to use a scholarship valued at $30 to provide room and meals while attending the Intercollegiate School of Alcohol Studies at McMaster University, Ontario, in September.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore Van Dellen
THE PUSS CATERPILLAR STING

The woolly worm, or puss caterpillar, is becoming a public health problem in several southern states, a group of Houston physicians report in the Journal of the American Medical Association. These fluffy little creatures sting when touched and severe reactions may ensue.

A questionnaire was sent to 1,280 physicians in southeastern Texas and replies were obtained from 601, who reported a total of 2,130 stings. More than 98 per cent of the victims developed severe pain or burning at the puncture sites. The area was swollen and distress persisted for several hours. Some felt tired or irritable; others complained of head ache. Five had convulsions and symptoms were severe enough in eight patients to require hospitalization.

The majority were stung when they brushed against the caterpillars or during attempts to remove them from the skin or clothing. These critters do not sting from the underside but from the many hollow quills on the back. They inject a toxin into the skin openings made by the quills. No one dies but the reaction is distressing.

The Houston physicians recommend a form of treatment that should relieve most insect bites. They applied immediately a piece of adhesive or scotch tape over the sting to remove broken off spines or stingers.

This was followed by the use of an ice pack to relieve pain and burning sensations. A saline or lotion containing an antihistamine was of questionable value in alleviating discomfort from caterpillar worms but these remedies may relieve soreness from the bites or stings of other insects. A spray, salve, or lotion containing a corticosteroid also is helpful. The Texas men used epinephrine to control allergy symptoms and a variety of pain killing drugs.

GERMS ON PILLOWS

Mrs. D. B. writes: Can cold germs collect on pillows? The pillow slips may be clean but I've seen dirty tickings underneath.

REPLY
Yes, but the chances of infection are minimized when the spots are dry. Pillows should be washed or cleaned periodically.

ASPIRIN AND THE STOMACH
O. D. writes: Is aspirin hard on a child's stomach?

REPLY
It may irritate the gastric lining in children as well as in adults. Children also are more sensitive to aspirin.

DISK DISEASE

B. O. B. writes: Is a ruptured disk the same as a slipped disk?

REPLY
Yes. Each vertebra is separated by a cushion (disk) that looks and feels like a slice of lobster tail. The edge weakens with age or injury and when it gives way, the ruptured area bulges like a bubble and presses upon the spinal cord or nerve root. The protruding part is called slipped disk erroneously.

TOBACCO AND ANXIETY

C. L. M. writes: Could smoking be responsible for anxiety attacks?

REPLY
Smoking overstimulates some people and might make them feel uneasy. But as a rule, anxiety is of emotional origin and is unrelated to smoking. To complicate smoke.

THIRSTY AFTER EATING OUT
C. L. writes: Every time I eat in a restaurant I crave glass after glass of water, lemonade, or anything cold after I get home. Why?

REPLY
Cravings of this type usually have their origin in a long forgotten experience. Possibilities include severe nausea from a previous visit to a filthy restaurant or eating greasy food. Too much salt is another factor.

Today's Health Hint—
Fatigue plays a major role in many accidents.

Hebron Church Homecoming Set

The annual homecoming at Hebron Church in Winn parish will be held Sunday. The old church is located on highway 126 between Grayson and Sikes.

All members and friends are invited to attend. There will be an all-day singing at which all singers will be invited to participate.

Rev. A. A. Calhoun will make a speech at 11:30. Lunch will be served at the noon hour on the church lawn.

Hampton Rites Scheduled Today

Funeral services will be held Saturday for William Joseph Hampton, 93, who died Thursday following an illness of several months.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. in the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home with the Rev. Leon Ivey pastor of the Temple Baptist Church officiating. Interment will be in the Memorial Park Cemetery under the direction of Hixson's.

He is survived by four sons, Oscar, Arthur and Hubert Hampton, all of Monroe and Norris Hampton of Jonesboro; two daughters, Mrs. Dell Spell, Monroe and Mrs. H. C. Ravencraft, New Orleans; one sister, Mrs. George Jones, Clarksville, Tenn.; 17 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

Good things seem to come in bunches for Berry Hinton, Louisiana Tech baseball mentor. This season, for the fourth straight year, the Bulldogs captured the Gulf States Conference title, and Hinton has claimed his fourth consecutive "Coach of the Year" title in balloting by the Louisiana Sports Writers association.

Wright Pushes In Lead In Round Robin

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Six shot sub-par 71s in the women's Round Robin Golf Tournament Friday but Mickey Wright's two-over 74 gave her the lead after the third round.

Miss Wright, the tall power-hitting girl from California who has won four tournaments this year, benefitted from an 81 by Marlene MacKenzie and two bad rounds by Marlene Hagge, Thursday's leader, to move to the top of the standings.

The ratings in the Round Robin aren't based on scores alone but on a point system decided by the difference between each player's score and those of the three she plays with in each round. The pairings are rotated so that in the course of five rounds each one meets all 15 of the others.

Miss Wright fired a par 72 in the morning over the rolling 6,293-yard Wykagyl course and gained eight points from Mary Lena Falk and Jo Ann Prentice while finishing even with Kathy Cornelius, who became the leader after the second round.

Then in the afternoon Mickey's 74 was good for six more points as she selected them from Miss MacKenzie and Mrs. Hagge while dropping only three to Patty Berg, one of the 71 shooters. She started the day's 36-hole chore with a plus 8 rating from the opening round and her total thus mounted to 22.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hagge, whose opening round of 69 gave her a plus 26 total, shot a horrible 81 on the morning round and followed with a 76. They cost her 25 points and left her at plus one.

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Scores and point totals after three rounds of the women's Round Robin Golf Tournament Friday:

Mickey Wright (plus 22) 72-72-74-221
Patty Berg (plus 21) 75-75-71-221
Kathy Cornelius (plus 21) 71-72-74-217
Louise Suggs (plus 12) 72-72-71-215
Kathy Whitworth (plus 12) 75-75-70-220
Mary Lena Falk (plus 23) 74-75-72-221
Marlene Hagge (plus 1) 69-81-76-226
Betsy Rawls (plus 1) 70-70-76-216
Betty Hanson (minus 4) 77-77-71-225

BOSTON (AP)—Ryne Duren of the Los Angeles Angels established an American League record Friday night when he struck out seven consecutive Boston Red Sox batters.

The previous American League record of six was shared by 10 pitchers.

ana Tech baseball mentor. This season, for the fourth straight year, the Bulldogs captured the Gulf States Conference title, and Hinton has claimed his fourth consecutive "Coach of the Year" title in balloting by the Louisiana Sports Writers association.

The amiable Hinton drew eight votes for the honor, four more than McNeese coach Reed Stephens. Three of the 15 writers who participated in the baseball poll did not cast a ballot for any coach.

In his 18th season at Tech, Hinton has claimed no less than nine conference titles, but the one this year is no doubt one of the most satisfying of them all.

After a wholesale loss of talent from the championship 1960 team, the Bulldogs were supposed to rejoin the remainder of the league, and a comfortable second or third-place finish was predicted.

But Hinton's charges upset the odds by grabbing off an early lead to hang on all the way and finish on top with a 15-4 mark in a season of grueling doubleheaders. The full-season record stood at 21-6, giving Hinton an enviable record of 176 victories and only 91 defeats since 1948, according to available figures.

His conference record over the same period was an even better 128-60, for a .681 percentage.

Hinton, whose devotion to the game is evidenced by the success of his teams and their fundamental soundness, has been in the coaching ranks for some 30 years. Before returning to Tech, Hinton, a native of nearby Vernon, coached for some years in Arkansas.

Hinton, himself, was a star athlete at Tech before his 1930 graduation. He was a four-year letterman in both baseball and basketball and was an all-conference performer in the latter for his senior year. In addition, he was a starting halfback for the Bulldogs as a junior and senior.

Here is Hinton's year-by-year won-loss record at Tech since 1948 (records for earlier seasons are unavailable).

Little League Baseball

Twin - City Printing remained undefeated in a Southside Little League slugfest, downing the North Monroe Lions 18-13, to retain their league lead.

North Monroe scored five runs in the bottom of the fifth to tie the score 13-13, but Twin - City boomed back with three homers that scored five runs and iced the game away.

Hitting four-baggers in the crucial inning were Buddy Wright, with one aboard, Charles Floyd, with another on, and Kent Peters. Floyd, Mike Wright and Charles Smith were the winning combination; Pat Stewart, Lynn Smith, Lynn McCarty, and Simpson were the battery for the second place Lions. Moore with two hits, led the Lions, who could have gained a first place tie with a win.

News Star defeated the Monroe Fire Department 11-4 in Minor League play. Dale Shellett collected three hits, and Darden two to lead the winners. Trichell had two for the losers. Lee and Darden were the winners; Darnell, Wall and Berndard were the losers.

The Squire Shop nudged North Monroe Kiwanis 12-11 in Northside Little League play last night. Bryan and Pohl were the winners; Nettles and Bannister. Smith was losers leading hitter with three for three.

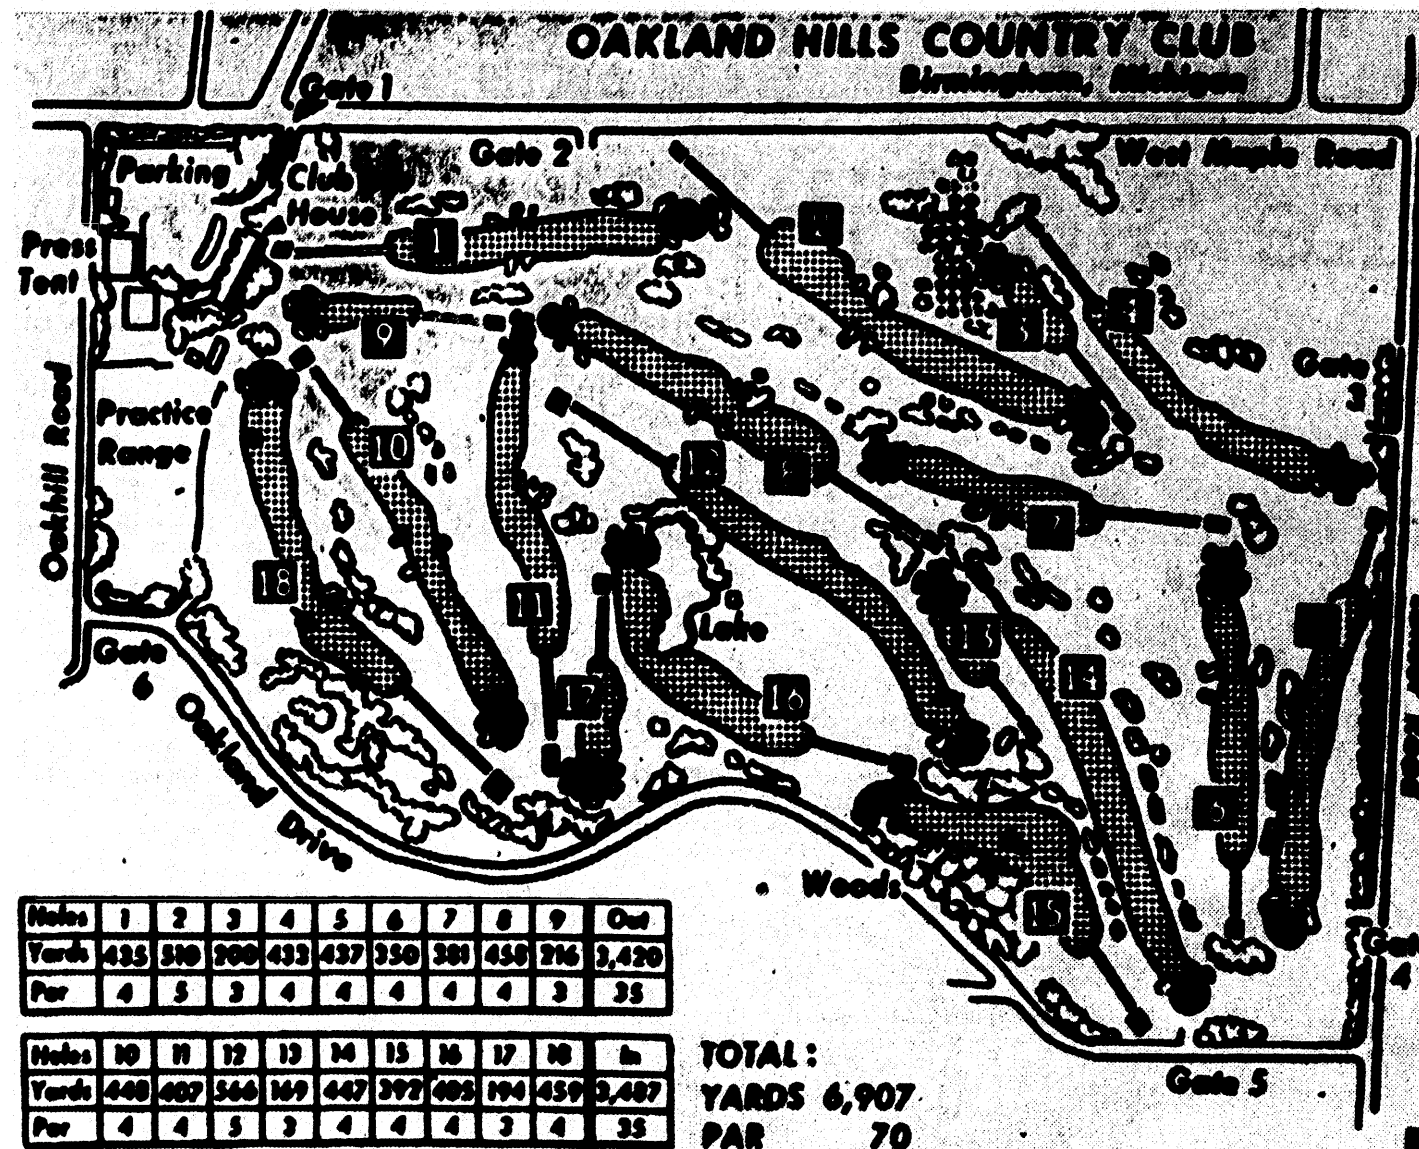

In Eastside play Three-Way Finance outslugged Keene's Shoe Store 25-10. Hale and Coates were the winning combination. Spurgeon led the winners with four for four. McBroom and Ogg were the losers. Fury led with two for three.

A Northside game Monroe Brick and King Finance was rained out with Monroe Brick ahead 5-4.

WHEN GRAND PRIX STARTS

Le Mans Becomes Site Of World's Toughest Race

LE MANS, France (AP)—This quiet village in northern France becomes the sports car capital Saturday when 55 Grand Prix veterans begin the 24-hour Le Mans race, toughest racing grind on the international circuit.

The race almost was scrapped in 1955 when a collision sent an exploding race car hurtling like a flaming scythe into the tight-packed crowd. Eighty-four persons were killed in the worst disaster in auto racing history.

Precautions have been taken to safeguard spectators but the drivers still face the same hazards along the twisting 8.36-mile course. Stirling Moss, Britain's ace driver, says:

"Le Mans is more dangerous than any race in the world."

The building Briton is on hand for the 29th running along with such other stars of the Grand Prix wars as the Rodriguez brothers of Mexico—Pedro, 21, and Ricardo, 19; Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif.; Ritchie Ginther of Grand Hills, Calif.; Wolfgang von Trips of Germany; Bruce McLaren of New Zealand; Maurice Trintignant of France and Sweden's bearded Joaquin Bonnier.

Ginther, the 30-year-old freckled-faced Californian, served notice that the Ferraris will be tough to beat when he pushed a 2.3-liter Ferrari around the course Wednesday in 4:02.8 for an average of 123.95 miles an hour.

Baby-faced Pedro Rodriguez, in a 3-liter Ferrari, burned around the track just a shade slower at 123.92 MPH.

Another swift time trial was turned in by Walt Hansen of Westfield, N.J., who was clocked just one second slower than Ginther. Hansen is driving a 3-liter Maserati for Briggs Cunningham of Green Farm, Conn. Hansen is teamed with MacLaren.

Ginther is driving with Von Trips—the official Ferrari factory team.

Hill is driving a Ferrari with Belgium's Olivier Gendebien—the same team that won the 12-hour Sebring Endurance race March 26.

Moss, a living legend on the Grand Prix circuit, is driving a 3-liter Ferrari entered by the North American racing team of New York. Moss is teamed with Graham Hill of Britain.

A&E Grocery defeated A. J. Lester 9-5 in Southside Little League play last night. Marty Tidwell was the winning pitcher; Gary Tidwell was his catcher. Ronnie Freeman and David Sims led the winners hitting, both with two for four, including a double apiece. For the losers it was Dennis Patrick and Phillip Purvis on the mound and behind the plate. Vernon Hale led their hitting with three for three.

In the second game Foremost edged 3-1 in a rain - abbreviated game, called in the fourth. Mike Ketchell and Freddie Hudson were the winners; Victor Thompson and Eddie Brown were the losers. Billy Foster led the losers with two for three.

Doubts Races Thrown Often On Dope Use

TORONTO (AP)—Hirsch Jacobs one of the all-time great American horse trainers, said Friday it is a fallacy to believe that racehorses could win by stimulating them.

"This probably would help some but such cases of doped horses winning races are far and few between," he told the annual convention of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners.

The saliva test, which he said was one of the many contributions to racing made by Joseph E. Widener of New York, had "proved a boon to racing and has given the public confidence in the sport because they know that all horses in a race are on an equal basis."

His comments were made during a panel discussion on the subject of a trainer's responsibility for the condition of his horses.

Jacobs, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., said also that more security measures were needed at many tracks around the stabling and testing areas.

New York, he said, was "too lax, too careless."

"A trainer is responsible for the care and condition of his horses while they are under his control," he said. "However, there is no way in the world that a trainer can watch his horses 24 hours a day. He has to put himself in the hands of the men he employs."

McDermott, who spent three years "fighting my way back to the majors" has found a home with the St. Louis Cardinals as the club's left-handed Lindy McDaniel.

In fact the 32-year-old former American Leaguer has been the Red Birds' top relief man so far this season, often going to the rescue of ace right-hander Lindy McDaniel, who has had his troubles at times.

McDermott came to the Cardinals' early camp in February at Homestead, Fla., requesting a chance. Manager Solly Hemus obliged.

"But he promised me nothing but a chance," McDermott recalls. "He said he needed batting practice pitchers."

Hemus had reason to remember McDermott, who felled Solly in a beating incident in a 1951 exhibition when Mickey was with the Boston Red Sox.

McDermott was one of the hardest working athletes at Homestead, was invited to the main Red Bird base at St. Petersburg, Fla., and promptly made the club with his hard hitting and sharp pitching.

In 11 appearances in relief covering 14 1/3 innings this season, McDermott has won one game, lost none, saved three and permitted just two earned runs for a 1.26 earned run average, best on the club. He has given up only one home run, walked five and struck out 10.

As a pinch-hitter he is batting .250, including a three-run double against San Francisco April 23.

The Cardinals are the 10th team Mickey has played for, including the majors and minors. He was an 18-gamewinner in 1953 during a five-season stint in Boston, then started moving around.

The handsome pitcher worked two winters as a night club crooner in Boston and part of his act was impersonating big-name singers. He wears a big grin and is easy going. But this vanishes when he tells of how he was sent to the minors in 1958 by John Hale, then Detroit general manager, with the promise he would get a big league contract for 1959.

But he was sold to Dallas and refused to go. Commissioner Ford Frick refused to act, explaining it was just a verbal agreement with Hale.

GAME TIME—7:45 P.M.

Sports Hosting Dubach Tonight

The Twin-City Sports return to Legion Stadium tonight in quest of their first La-Ark win. Their opponents for the battle, which gets underway at 7:45 p.m., will be Dubach, a team whose sole concern will be beating their 1-1 mark.

Dubach defeated Homer and lost to Farmerville, while the Sports dropped games to Ruston and Farmerville.

Though the Sports lost the first two, they boast a solid club, with several outstanding stars. At least three-team members are present or former All-GSC selections.

Making up this list are Kelton Bacon, stellar catcher for conference champion Louisiana Tech this spring, George Bryan, first baseman at Northeast State and Buddy O'Conner, ex - Northeast star and GSC batting champion.

Sports manager Vivian Petty is undecided on his starting pitcher for tonight's game, but indicated it would probably be Terry Reeves, a former Northeast leftee or George Fruge, West Monroe High, American Legion and long-time La-Ark hurler.

McDermott fought his way back. Last season he was 13-11 at Little Rock, starting and relieving, playing first base and pinch hitting.

Haggin Steed Is Oceanport Race Winner

By The Associated Press
Louis Lee Haggin 2nd's Carless John scored the first stakes victory of his career, winning the $15,000-added Oceanport Handicap before an opening-day crowd of 15,942 at Monmouth Park Friday.

Smartly rated by Bill Boland, the 4-year-old colt took command inside the eighth pole and scored by three-quarters of a length over Fred W. Hooper's Winonly after running the 6 furlongs in 1:09—three-fifths off the track record. Circle K Farm's Watch Your Step was third.

Carless John paid $20.80. Pied D'Or, winner of the Camden Handicap in his last start, went off a lukewarm favorite but finished eighth in the field of nine.

Calumet Farm's Hillsborough, stablemate of Pied D'Or came charging through the stretch and won the $10,000 Huntington Handicap at Belmont Park.

The 4-year-old son of Ponder Good Blood, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, stepped the 1 1/4 miles in 1:50.3-5 and won by 1 1/2 lengths over Hoe Down. Nissequoque was third.

The solid favorite, Hillsborough returned $3.30.

ODDS—BOXER, AGE AND SCALES

Ancient One Goes Against Italy's Rinaldi Tonight

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Moore defends his share of the world light heavyweight boxing title Saturday night against the triple-threat of Italy's Giulio Rinaldi, old age and the scales.

Old age is given the best chance of upsetting the ancient one. With a $100,000 guarantee at stake, Moore is expected to make the 175-pound class limit even if he has to shave his chin whiskers.

His trainer, Dick Sadler, said before leaving the Monticello, N.Y. camp that Moore was down to 176½ and would have no trouble. He loosened up briefly Friday.

Beating age may be a more difficult problem. Archie claims he is 47. Doubt about his strength after a long weight-reducing program, has sliced the reported odds from 3-1 to 5-5 with Moore favored.

Rinaldi has youth on his side. The 26-year-old boxer from Anzio beat Moore in a non-title 10-round last Oct. 29 in Rome. The decision, plus the fact that Moore took a disputed eight-count while standing, set up the rematch with the title at stake.

Moore's share of the title has been chipped away and now covers New York, Massachusetts and Europe. The National Boxing Association withdrew its recognition last October because of his failure to defend. Later the NBA crowned Harold Johnson.

This 15-round match at Madison Square Garden scheduled for 9 p.m. (EST), will be carried by network (ABC) television which is paying $150,000 for the rights. Under New York rules, two judges and a referee, to be named at ringside, score a fight by rounds. They use a supplementary point system in case the rounds are even. A crowd of 10,000 is expected to pay $30,000.

Moore, a veteran of 212 pro fights dating back to 1936, holds the record for knockouts with 130. He hasn't defended in almost 22 months. His most recent defense was against Yvon Durelle in Montreal Aug. 12, 1959. He knocked out Durelle in three rounds. Archie's career record is 181-28-4.

Old Archie, who likes to call himself the MongOOSE, has held the title longer than any other light heavy champ. Since he won it from Joey Maxim, Dec. 17, 1952 he has defended it eight times. Maxie Rosenbloom also defended the same crown eight times but his reign lasted only four years.

Moore has it all over Rinaldi in ability, experience and punching power. The big question is—how much does he have left?

Rinaldi, a comparative novice with a 25-5 record and eight knockouts, beat Archie last October on a big 10th round. Reports of the fight say Moore was far superior in the early rounds and in the sixth round it was Rinaldi, not Moore, who seemed to be tiring.

In the closing minute of the Rome bout, Moore was staggered back against the ropes. The referee started counting and reached eight while Moore waved his hands wildly for him to get out of the way.

Moore gets a $100,000 guarantee, plus $12,000 expenses with a privilege of taking 40 per cent of all the receipts, including TV and gate. Rinaldi gets a flat $25,000 guarantee, plus transportation expenses.

While training in an Italian-style summer resort at Haines Falls, N.Y., Rinaldi seemed agile and sturdy.

He whipped Sonny Ray, Freddie Mack and Sixto Rodriguez, all by decision, in his three starts since beating Moore.

Archie thumped Buddy Turman twice and boxed several exhibitions since his return from Rome. In his last fight, March 25 in Manila, Moore weighed 201 pounds. He scaled 190½ to Rinaldi's 181½ last October.

ARGONAUT AND MOTHER GOOSE

Two Big Races Up On Saturday

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Four-And-Twenty, who led at one stage in the Kentucky Derby, and the 1960 champion 2-year-old filly, Bowl Of Flowers, rate top billings Saturday in two big weekend races a continent apart.

The nursery rhyme colt, named because his dam is Sixpence 2nd, will resume an old rivalry with Olden Times in the $30,000-added Argonaut Stakes at Hollywood Park. Bowl Of Flowers, winner of six consecutive races, is an even money favorite to capture the $75,000-added Mother Goose Stakes at Belmont Park.

The Argonaut is at 1 3-16 miles for 3-year-olds and the Mother Goose at 1 1/4 miles for 3-year-old fillies.

A couple of veteran saddle masters, Johnny Longden and Eddie Arcaro, will be the engineers. Longden rides Four-And-Twenty, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby. Arcaro will pilot Bowl Of Flowers, a filly he insists can hold her own any time they might choose to enter her against the 3-year-old colts.

Other major feature races are the $25,000-added Citation Handicap for older horses at Washington Park, the $20,000-added Select Handicap for 3-year-olds at Monmouth Park, and the $20,000-added Polly Drummond Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at Delaware Park.

Four-And-Twenty is owned by the Alberta Ranches of Canada, and after finishing seventh in the Kentucky Derby, was found to have a hoof injury. It was repaired, and on Memorial Day the colt upset Olden Times in winning the Will Rogers Stakes at Hollywood Park by 1 1/4 lengths. Olden Times is owned by Rex C. Ellsworth, who captured the 1955 Kentucky Derby with Swaps.

Willie Shoemaker will ride Olden Times in the Argonaut, a race leading up to the $100,000 Hollywood Derby July 8.

Eight were entered for the Argonaut, and Four-And-Twenty must tote 126 pounds topweight. Olden Times carries 123, and Captain Fair, winner of seven stakes rushed up in the final strides last month to win the Acorn Stakes at Aqueduct, first of the triple crown for fillies. It was one of her hardest races. If B-O-F can win the Mother Goose, only the $100,000 Coaching Club American Oaks June 24 will keep her from the big triple.

Ogden Phipps' Funloving, who won Pimlico's Black-Eyed Susan Stakes, the Kentucky Oaks heroine, Fred Hooper's My Portrair, and Andy Crevolin's Mighty Fair, winner of the Jersey Belle, will be out to make Bowl Of Flowers earn whatever she gets. Nine were entered.

The Alamode Farm's Mail Order is the highweight under 124 pounds in the Citation Handicap, having won three big stakes at Aqueduct this spring. Mail Order will be ridden by Bill Hartack. Eleven were entered for the one mile Citation, named for the 1948 triple crown champion. Johnny Sellers, Carry Back's jockey, rides Jack Hogan's Oink, rated Mail Order's chief rival. Oink packs 120 pounds.

Twenty horses were entered for the 6-furlong Select Handicap, largest field ever named for a stakes at the seashore oval. Henry O. H. Frelinghuysen's English-bred Merry Ruler has top weight of 126 pounds, having won three big eastern races this year. The Calumet Farm's Beau Prince, one of the favorites for the Kentucky Derby-Preakness- Belmont triple until he was hurt, returns to stakes action in the Select under 118 pounds.

ITALIAN DRIVER Augusto Spera missed this turn on the way down from an up-hill race at Consuma, Near Florence, Italy, Monday. At top, Spera's British-made TR3 sports car rams into the retaining wall. At center, the car has broken apart and bounced off the wall. At bottom, Spera leaves the crash unhurt and in a hurry. (AP Wirephoto)

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Look out, Luis, your base-stealing crown is slipping.

That's right. For the first time since Luis Aparicio came up to the Chicago White Sox in 1956, he's being challenged for American League stolen base honors.

And if Luis doesn't get moving real soon, he'll find that Dick Howser, rookie shortstop of the Kansas City Athletics, is the new stolen base king.

Luis already is trailing tricky Dick, who has stolen 17 bases to the defending champion's 14. Howser pilfered two in the second game of Thursday's twin-night split with the New York Yankees. The 21-year-old speedster already has more than doubled the previous high mark by a Kansas City player.

Who is Dick Howser? "Dick Howser," said Kansas City manager Joe Gordon, "is going to be the A's shortstop for the next 10 years, if not longer. He's a fine little ball player and I wouldn't be at all surprised if he becomes the rookie of the year. You know something else? neither would he."

Howser is a confident 22-year-old scrapper whose aggressiveness falls just shy of cockiness. Only 5-9, he's a take charge guy who gives the impression he enjoys his work. His relaxed attitude belies his meager professional experience.

Howser still was on the Shreveport (Class A) roster during the spring training but he's the only player to have appeared in every Kansas City game. He leads the club in several departments, including runs scored and doubles.

"Howser does so many things well," said Gordon. "He has speed, he's a good hitter, he makes all the plays in the field, and he has a good arm. He's a complete ball player."

"He's even better than we anticipated, and we thought he was pretty good. You never know about kids. Some become awed by the big leagues. But not he. The first day of spring training, I walked over to him and said:

"This is the society that these players have been brought up in, and to my way of thinking," he said, "the players involved are the least guilty of anyone at all involved in creating their environment."

Cousey, considered one of the greatest professional basketball players, made the remarks after attending the Afton Central High School athletic award dinner. He said then: "Our American society has become rotten to the core."

The scandal has involved 31 players from 17 colleges. They have been charged with taking bribes for shaving points in 40 games.

Cousey said he did not believe the National Basketball Association could relax the standard that prevents admission of college players involved in such scandals.

Cousey took issue with a published report that the way to avoid future scandals was to jail the players for 10 years and thereby set an example.

"I hope the man who wrote that has examined his own conscience and found he can pass," Cousey said.

Cousey, who formerly played at Holy Cross, said he was disturbed about the cases of Tony Jackson of St. Johns (N.Y.), and Fred Crawford of St. Bonaventure. The two players did not accept bribes but purportedly failed to report bribery offers.

"Two months from now, how many fans are going to be able to tell you which players accepted the bribes and which didn't?" Cousey said he did not expect the NBA would allow Jackson and Crawford to play in the pro league.

DOLLARS FOLLOW DIPLOMAS

Bonus Explosion On For Players

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Major league baseball continued its annual June bonus boom Friday following up diplomas with dollars in a scramble for young prospects.

The Milwaukee Braves went over $100,000 for Wade Blasingame, a 17-year-old pitcher from Fresno, Calif. The left-hander had a 20-0 record, including three no-hitters, and averaged 15 strikeouts a game this season. He was assigned to Boise in the Class C Pioneer League.

Milwaukee also signed first baseman Gerry Bosse, 18, of Baltimore to a Class D contract with Davenport in the Midwest League.

The Kansas City A's, who Thursday shelled out $125,000 for 19-year-old pitcher Lew Krausse, continued the spree with what was described as a substantial bonus to pitcher Tommy Barnicle, a 19-year-old lefty and son of former Boston Braves' pitcher George Barnicle. The youngster, from Fitchburg, Mass., will report to Sarasota in the Class D Florida State League.

Another Massachusetts pitcher, Bill McGilivray, 17, of Boston was signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates and assigned to Kingsport, Tenn., in the Class D Appalachian League.

The Pirates reportedly also have paid a bonus of more than $200,000 for an 18-year-old shortstop—Bob Bailey, of Long Beach, Calif. The Vancouver Sun said the signing will be announced next week, after Bailey graduates from high school.

The St. Louis Cardinals reached into the college ranks for pitcher Dennis Aust, 20, of Tampa. The University of Florida right-hander reports to Johnson City, Tenn., in the Appalachian League.

The Los Angeles Angels signed two Florida A&M infielders, Bob Lucas of Jacksonville, Fla., and Dave Best of Tallahassee. They were assigned to Statesville, N.C., in the Class D Western Carolina League.

The New York Yankees signed Tom Booker of Louisville, Ky., an all-Southern Conference outfielder at the University of Richmond, for a modest bonus. Booker, 20, goes to Greensboro in the Class B Carolina League.

A's Say Twins Get Paul Giel

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics said Friday the Minnesota Twins had made cash settlement with the club for pitcher Paul Giel, who retired after he had been obtained in a trade.

Giel and Reno Bertoia had been traded to Kansas City for outfielder Bill Tuttle.

Charles Finley, owner of the A's, said Cal Griffith, owner of the Twins, was "most cooperative in the matter."

"I am not announcing the amount we are receiving from Minnesota for Giel, but it is a sizeable one and I am perfectly satisfied."

Card In Hospital

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Hal Smith, the St. Louis Cardinals' first-string catcher, entered Jewish Hospital Friday for a thorough physical examination. He has been troubled with abdominal pains.

Smith, whose hitting perked up recently to .240, is expected to miss the 4-game series with the Cincinnati Reds which started Friday night.

Delhi Student At Northeast Gets Appointment

A Northeast Louisiana State College student has been awarded a summer appointment as a clerical assistant in the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization in Washington, D.C.

Rogers Meredith Prestridge, a junior government major from Delhi, will report to the Washington area personnel division supervisor of C&D Mobilization on June 12.

Amounting to approximately $1,000, the award for an outstanding student to participate in a program for student assistants for the federal government was initiated by Congressman Otto E.

Passman of the 5th District.

Dr. George T. Walker, president of Northeast State, recommended Prestridge for the position. Official notification of the appointment came in a telegram from William S. Heffelfinger, director of administrators in the office of C&D Mobilization.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. James

I. Prestridge of route three, Delhi, Prestridge will return to Northeast State in September to complete his senior year.

A 1952 graduate of Crowley High School, he served 4½ years as a lieutenant in the Air Force. At NLSC he has been a member of the Student Council, the Social Science Club, was instrumental last year in the re-organization of the Veterans Club, and recently was elected vice president of the Student Council.

In April last year, he was representative of the NLSC Social Science Club at a meeting of the Auburn Conference on International Affairs at Auburn, Ala.

Theft Charges

Are Dismissed

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The State Friday dropped theft charges against Lawrence Langley, former police officer.

The move came as Langley's case was brought up before Dist. Judge Jess Johnson.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Ralph Roy said although the state had a confession it was unable to prove the charge for lack of other evidence.

Langley was accused of stealing a $10 roll of quarters from a local service station when sent to investigate a burglary in 1959.

Afternoon Reception Honors Ac/2, Mrs. Varino

The Hilton Street home of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Varino was the setting Sunday afternoon, June 4, when Mrs. A. L. Embanato and Mrs. Louis Elias entertained with a reception honoring Ac/2 and Mrs. Joseph Varino, who were recently married.

Pink carnations and pink stock were used in arrangements throughout the house, while the tea table was centered with gardenias, fern, and Helen Traubel roses.

The honoree wore a lovely black and white print chiffon model, and her corsage, along with those of her hostess, was of gardenias.

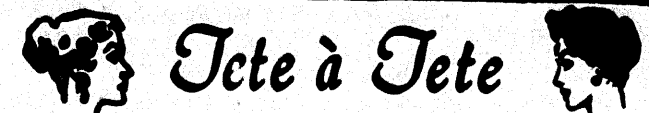

Miss Marcie Davis and Miss Patricia Graham alternated in pouring, and Miss Anita Moore and Miss Veronica Worley assisted in serving. Approximately one hundred guests called between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock.

Ac-2 and Mrs. Varino will be stationed at Gunter Air Force Base, in Montgomery, Alabama.

MR. AND MRS. WARREN E. BRENNEN have as their houseguest this week Mrs. Brennen's sister, Miss Marcia Maumus, of New Orleans.

GUESTS IN THE HOME OF Mrs. Ford L. Stricklin this week were her father, W. S. Martin of Conway, Arkansas, her sister, Mrs. Alice Black, of Phoenix, Arizona, and Mrs. Sallie Eastham, an aunt, of Abeline, Texas.

MR. AND MRS. J. B. COBB have had visitors this week from out-of-town. From Ringgold are Mrs. M. Moreland, and children, Connie and Vickie, and from Greenville, South Carolina are Major and Mrs. J. M. Wimberly, and children, Barry, Gary, Janet, and Gene.

JUST RETURNING FROM a 10 day trip to Amarillo, Texas, to visit Mrs. Robert L. Jones, the former Catherine Slavent, are Mr. and Mrs. George T. Slavent, and daughter Teise, of Monroe. En route home they stopped in Shreveport to visit Mrs. Jake Mandina. Joining them were Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Miller, and children, Pat, Cliff, Chuck, and Kenneth.

Bride-Elect, Miss Kay Honored

Miss Sandra Patricia Kay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Kay, has recently been honored with parties prior to her marriage on June 4 to Clyde H. Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harper.

A shower was given in the First National Bank in West Monroe with Mrs. A. J. Gilmore, Mrs. Dan McClure, Mrs. Hubert Mauldin, Mrs. Jimmy Gwin, Mrs. Benny Owens, Mrs. Mitchell DeFee, and Mrs. Theron Knox as hostesses.

A bridal cake with a miniature bride and groom and hearts attached by blue ribbons that were inscribed "Clyde" and "Sandy," was the focal point of the table.

Miss Kay chose to wear a blue cotton batiste with white accessories, and was presented with a blue and white mums corsage. Approximately 45 guests called during the "come and go" affair, and presented the honoree with lovely and useful gifts. Mrs. J. R. Richardson, grandmother of Miss Kay, of Dallas, Texas, was an out-of-town guest.

Mrs. James Cox of High Circle, West Monroe, entertained with a shower complimentary to Miss Kay at her home. For the party the bride-elect wore a blue and white striped cotton dress with an apron of nylon organza with white accessories. Punch and dainty cookies were served to the guests.

A luncheon was given in the home of Mrs. P. B. Mangum on Elizabeth Street by Mrs. Mangum and her daughter, Linda. They presented the bride-elect a cup and saucer of her chosen china and a white corsage of mums. Covers were laid for Miss Kay, Mrs. Albert L. Kay, Mrs. J. C. Harper, Miss Ann Harper, Miss Rita Miller, Miss Gay Jones, and Miss Peggy Dollar.

Culinary Pep-Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — New canned mushroom gravy is ideal for pepping up holiday leftovers such as roast turkey. The meatless heat-and-serve product also is recommended as an all-occasion gravy and cooking ingredient. The 10½-ounce can contains 1¼ cups of gravy, estimated to serve 4 to 5 persons.

Luke Warm Suds

Raincoats, shower curtains, tablecloths, and other plastic items can be washed by wiping with a sponge dipped into soap or detergent suds. But they may also be laundered in an automatic washer.

The trick is to use lukewarm suds and rinses, with a fairly short wash cycle. Remove plastics as soon as the washer shuts off, then hang them up or spread them flat to dry.

Miss Virginia Sue Sheppard Honor Guest At Brunch

The inviting old country home of Mrs. Shelby White, in Mer Rouge, was the scene Monday morning, June 5, when Mrs. White and Mrs. Roy C. Windsor entertained at Brunch from 9:30 to 12:30 honoring Miss Virginia Sue Sheppard, of Oak Ridge, whose marriage to Duke Barr will be solemnized at the Oak Ridge Methodist Church Wednesday, June 14.

The spacious front porch held potted plants, colorful birds in cages, and floral arrangements. Coffee was served from a massive urn to arriving guests.

In the living room spring flowers were in evidence, with card game tables set up, upon each of which were four gifts. With each progression the winners of the previous round had the choice of gifts. Crisp eyelet and lace covers over turquoise covered the tables.

The bride-elect wore an embroidered linen tulle dress in a light shade of blue, with which she wore a corsage of white glads, a gift from the hostesses.

At 11:00 the guests were invited into the dining room for brunch which was served from the large dining table with a rich satin damask cloth. The centerpiece was of daisies and maiden hair fern fashioned in a lovely antique silver and crystal epergne. Cards with pearl hearts and valley lilies marked the places for the 21 guests.

In the family room a large round table was centered with an arrangement of daisies in a milk glass container.

Among those present for the gala affair were: Mrs. C. E. Sheppard, Mrs. H. J. Norris, Mrs. W. O. Files, Mrs. Minnie Brodnax, Mrs. E. A. Barham, Mrs. John R. Windsor, Mrs. King Mott, Miss Nancy Lillian Files, Miss Billie Jean Carroll, Miss Diana Smith, Miss Marcia Files, Miss Roxie Green, Mrs. John Barr, Mrs. Neill Mott, Mrs. James A. Brown, Mrs. N. A. Turner, Mrs. W. E. Couger, Jr., and Mrs. E. P. McGlaulin.

Bon Voyage Party Fetes Miss Donald

Miss Ginger Donald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Donald, Jr., and sophomore at Northeast State College, was honored by Mrs. Duell C. Smith Jr. at a "Bon Voyage" party prior to her departure to Europe.

Blue hydrangeas and gardenias decorated the living room for the occasion. As a remembrance of her summer abroad, Miss Donald was presented a gold charm for her bracelet.

Invited for a visit with the honoree were Misses Billie Sue Dixon, Gretchen Guelzoe, Millie Hislop, Beth Fink, Camilla Harmon, Ellen Walker, Janet Hyman, Mary Jane Young, Sue Mors, and Noel Standley. This week Miss Donald visited in the W. C. Tuttle home on Palamos Island near Lane, South Carolina. Tuesday she will join her cousin, Miss Jane Whitley of Baton Rouge, for a student tour of England, France, Italy, Netherlands, Germany, Austria, Spain, Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Allow Child To Release "Pent-Up" Emotions

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It was Sigmund Freud who first made us aware of the damage possible when pent up feelings were repressed and thus denied normal release. The boiling kettle whose spout was closed off and which, without this outlet, was compelled to explode, is one illustration of this phenomenon.

This example is as usable today as it was then; and it applies equally to adults and children. Let's call the boiling water boiling emotions which have no satisfying outlet, and we can understand that inevitably there will be an explosion.

The feelings may not be of anger alone, they may be of fear, anxiety, humiliation or frustration. When the child is ashamed into suppressing these emotions...

they go back into the subconscious but later erupt without any apparent relationship to the immediate circumstances.

Ned had very mean feelings toward his new, little sister. But each time he expressed them his mother said chidingly, "Nice little boys don't talk like that about their little sisters. They love them. They treat them affectionately."

But Ned's emotions remained the same, complicated now by feelings of guilt for having them. So when he went outdoors his normal outlet for his mean feelings denied to him he picked on the small child next door. If this innocent bystander so much as said, "Will you play with me, Neddy?" he was up and at him, hitting him, calling him names.

As the two mothers put their heads together they tried to figure out why Ned, who used to be such a peaceful child, now could not be trusted with younger companions.

What Ned needed to be shown was that his mother understood his feeling. "Of course, you feel mean toward the baby, at times, because I have to give her so much attention. Also, so many people are making a fuss about her because she is new. I understand when you say these things, that it just helps you to get rid of that mean feeling. You

Deputies Find Stolen Safe In Amite River

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Sheriff Bryan Clemmons said Friday deputies recovered a safe stolen from the Teamsters Union hall March 28 from the Amite River at Magnolia Beach.

Clemmons said the safe was recovered Wednesday. The door had been burned off and nothing was inside but an empty metal box. The sheriff said deputy Ben Skidmore spotted the safe Saturday as he was diving for the body of Gordon L. Forman Jr., 23, who died of a broken neck after diving off the bridge into the river.

At the time the safe was stolen, $100 cash was listed as missing along with blank union checks and business records and papers.

I know I love you just the same even though I love the baby, too."

Maybe Ned's jealousy won't evaporate overnight. But if he can pound nails in boards, if he can throw sand about, if he can punch his favorite toy animal, all with his mother's encouragement—these are acceptable outlets which will prevent there being a disastrous emotional build-up which will erupt without cause or relevancy to the real issue.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Aged Parents Need Help From Grown Children

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Is it asupport money. It's a pretty sad daughter's place or a son's place to take care of an aging mother who can't work?

We have had many discussions on this subject in our family, and as you can guess, there has been some trouble. Will you please print your views in the paper? There must be thousands of others who are interested and want to hear an unbiased third party's opinion. —IN DISCORD

Dear In: A mother takes care of "all" her children, girls and boys alike, doesn't she? Why, then, should sex be a factor in determining who takes care of an aging parent?

In my opinion the responsibility—a better word is privilege—should be shared by all the children. State laws vary, however, and when it becomes a matter for the law to decide, the son is usually the one who must provide commentary, nevertheless, when the law must be used as a hammer to get children to behave in a humane and decent manner.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is engaged to marry a very sweet girl. She has been raised by a domineering father and a disheartened stepmother.

The father recently wrote us a letter saying we are supposed to pay for the flowers to decorate the altar, for the organist, the soloist, the refreshments and beverages for the wedding reception, and the orchestra.

The girl's aunt phoned me this morning. In tears. The bride's father wrote on the bottom of every invitation "No gifts. Please send money." I am embarrassed to death. It was done without the knowledge of our son and his fiancée. Please tell me what to do about all this. I am stumped. —GRAND RAPIDS

Dear Grand: Go to the public library and ask for the most current book on wedding etiquette. It will tell you who should pay for what. Write down the information, send it to the bride's father and tell him you are bewildered at his request and that you intend to follow the rules of etiquette.

The suggestion on the wedding invitation that friends send money is incredible. Phone your friends and relatives and ask them to please ignore it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 17 years old, an honor student, and she has always been well-behaved and easy to get along with. Miss J. is extremely good-looking and has a model's figure. I'm not saying this because I'm her mother. She has had modeling offers.

The problem involves her popularity. She goes with several fellows all from nice homes and never dates a young man unless we meet him first. The trouble is she invites the boys in after a movie or a dance and they sit up talking and playing records until 2:00 or 3:00 A. M.

Is this proper? Sometimes there's another couple or two, but usually it's just Miss J. and a beau. My husband doesn't approve of it. What do you say? —M. G.

Dear M. G.: I'm in favor of girls inviting their boy friends in after a date. It's a great deal more wholesome than parking in the weeds.

There should be a curfew, however. Boys shouldn't be permitted to hang around, indefinitely. I say 2:00 A. M. (occasionally) is late enough for a gal 17.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for "Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

3,000 In Greek Village Greet Mrs. Kennedy

HYDRA, Greece (AP)—Church bells pealed, boat sirens shrilled and nearly all Hydra's 3,000 people turned out waving and cheering Friday to welcome Jacqueline Kennedy for an overnight stay on this Greek island.

The American First Lady's vacation yacht North Wind brought her here to the northeast tip of the Peloponnese Peninsula from Poros Island, where she began her second day of sightseeing.

Hydra, a sponge-fishing village rising steeply from an almost circular harbor, was bright with Greek and U. S. flags hung from windows of whitewashed houses along narrow streets.

Mrs. Kennedy was taken to Town Hall where Mayor S. Rapphalias presented a big bouquet and Hydra children paraded in national costumes in her honor.

DEAR ABBY

Tell Him To Take His Questions Elsewhere

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend of the opposite sex who is a little bit younger than me. This person does not have much of a home life. We have been very close for over a year. He asks me questions about sex. So far I have just answered "yes" or "no" but haven't gone into any more detail than that. Lately he has been asking questions that need more than a "yes" or "no." Should I answer them? I know I am the only person he confides in. I am 15 and he is 14. —TONGUE-TIED

DEAR TONGUE - TIED: Your young friend needs more information than you can give him. Encourage him to seek it from a mature male. (A teacher, clergyman or relative.) And if he asks you to discuss sex with him again, tell him "No!"

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago my son and his wife had their first child after nine years of marriage. Naturally they were happy. My daughter - in - law has never been a good housekeeper, and she hasn't kept her own appearance as long as I've known her. But since the baby came I am just heartsick to see him in dirty undershirts, sweaters, and wrapped in dirty blankets. I don't think she has ever washed these things. There is no excuse for it as she has a new washing machine. It's not only unhealthy for the baby, but downright disgusting. I can't understand how my son can see this and not stop in. I don't want to be a meddling mother-in-law, but how can I call this to her attention? —NO ADVICE MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR NO: Do not mention this to your son. But tell your daughter-in-law that if her washing machine is out of order, she may use yours to launder the baby's things until it is repaired. Or offer to do the baby's laundry for her.

DEAR ABBY: Is it out of line to ask your daughter to hang her good clothes up so they will look better, and not like they have been slept in? Who is to blame? Heaven help the man she marries unless he can provide her with a personal maid. It's no joke. I have yelled at her for years, and she never improved. —HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It's your fault, mother. Yelling rarely accomplishes anything. But if you had confiscated her good clothes when they were not where they should have been, she would have "learned" by now.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I was a little girl I can remember my mother making sacrifices so that my two older sisters could have nice things. My sisters are married now, and both are very comfortably situated. But my parents could be living on the moon for all the attention my sisters pay them. Why is it that grown children don't appreciate their parents after the funeral?

I hope I live long enough to see my nieces and nephews grow up and treat my sisters the way they are treating Mamma. Way truly, —DISGUSTED

JOHNSON REPORTS

U.S. Increasing Aid To Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson disclosed Friday that the United States has taken a series of steps to strengthen South Viet Nam and battle Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

Johnson, who recently returned from a fact-finding mission to Asia, told the 1961 conference of United Press International editors and publishers there has been substantial improvement in the situation in Communist-threatened South Viet Nam.

He said the United States would not surrender Asia to communism without a fight. But in a question and answer session following his speech he answered with an emphatic "no" when asked if there was any likelihood of sending U. S. troops to Viet Nam or Laos.

Johnson said the people of Southeast Asia are "too recently away from colonialism" to want Western troops stationed on their territory.

"They say that American combat troops are not needed and would be very undesirable," he said. "They have the manpower. What they really need from us is management and material."

The vice president listed the following actions taken to help South

Viet Nam combat Communist guerrillas and remain free:

The United States is supplying funds and material to help South Viet Nam call up 6,000 additional troops as the first step in a 20,000-man increase in its army. South Viet Nam also is increasing its civil guard from 30,000 to 60,000 men.

A group of U. S. experts, headed by Dr. Eugene Stanley of the Standard Research Institute, is scheduled to leave next week for South Viet Nam to advise President Ngo Dinh Diem's government on economic problems.

A team of health experts from the armed forces and Public Health Service will go to South Viet Nam for six months to help improve health and sanitation facilities at the village level. Disease has been impeding military operations and economic progress.

The Vietnamese president has reorganized his government as promised and is sending a top official, Nguyen Dinh Thuan, to Washington Monday for consultations with U. S. officials on the specific aid his country needs.

A special unit has been established in the U. S. government to tackle the problem of strengthening South Viet Nam against the Communist threat.

Music Fete Orchestral Head Named

Roger DiGiulian, newly appointed string teacher and orchestra director for the city school system, will teach and handle the orchestral activities of the Youth Music Festival sponsored by Northeast Louisiana State College, June 12 through 24.

DiGiulian will conduct the orchestra during the second week of the festival.

A graduate of Louisiana State University, he has had wide experience in teaching strings in elementary and junior and senior high schools.

For several years he was engaged in the extension string program supported by Mississippi Southern, was conductor of the South Mississippi Youth Orchestra, the Elementary String Project Orchestra, and has been guest conductor of the Mississippi All - State String Orchestra.

DiGiulian comes to Monroe from Dallas, Tex., where he taught in the junior high schools. During the past year he was conductor of the Dallas City - Wide Orchestra.

Additional information and application forms for the Youth Music Festival may be obtained from the office of dean of fine arts at Northeast State College. Applications will be accepted through Monday morning June 12 without late charge.

U.S.-Canadian Group Agree On NATO Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Canadian-American Interparliamentary Group Friday declared support for use of all necessary force—including nuclear weapons—to maintain access by the Western Allies to West Berlin.

The group, made up of 24 visiting members of the Canadian Parliament and 24 members of the U. S. Congress, reported after two days of discussion that there was full agreement on the necessity for strengthening the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's convention forces, and the desirability for its having small nuclear weapons for tactical use.

"It was recognized," said a joint statement, "that if the Soviet Union moved at any time in force to cut off access to West Berlin, NATO would be ready to respond with all necessary force."

Sen. Mark Drouin, speaker of the Canadian Senate, one of the co-chairmen, said under questioning that this included the use of "nuclear weapons," if NATO strategists felt they were necessary to assure success.

The statement, read at a news conference, was vague in many respects, and did not say whether it referred to major or tactical nuclear weapons.

U.S. Forecast Revised Upward On Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department Friday forecast this year's wheat crop at 1,343,000,000 bushels.

This figure is 16 million bushels more than the department's previous forecast of 1,327 million bushels. Production last year was 1,363 million bushels, the second largest of record. Production for the ten-year (1950-59) average was 1,094,899,000 bushels.

The 1960-61 season crop of oranges was reported at 117,935,000 boxes compared with 126,760,000 last year and 121,786,000 for the ten-year average.

The spring potato crop was estimated at 32,144,000 hundredweight compared with 30,936,000 last year with 27,820,000 for the ten-year average. The early summer potato crop was forecast at 14,111,000 hundredweight compared with 15,038,000 last year and 12,530,000 for the ten-year average.

The late spring potato crop by states:

Alabama 2,084,000 hundredweight; Mississippi 280,000; Arkansas 342,000; and Louisiana 354,000.

Chain Store Chief To Become Baron

LONDON (AP) — A chain store chief who is Britain's biggest seller of women's underwear is becoming a lord.

Sir Simon Marks, who runs the mercantile empire called Marks & Spencers, was in a list of honorees sprinkled on 2,300 persons by Queen Elizabeth II Saturday, her official birthday. He receives the rank of baron.

Elizabeth was 35 last April 21. But the official celebration, which includes parades and parties, is regularly put off until June in the hope the weather will be better then.

West Berlin Stands Firm Against Reds

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany stood pat Friday against speeded-up Soviet attacks on its activities in West Berlin. It refused to yield its ties with the isolated city.

Felix von Eckardt, the Bonn government spokesman, called the new protests from Moscow "artificial and unjustifiable." He made clear at a news conference they would be rejected.

There was similar reaction in London and Washington to the Soviet pressure, which developed less than a week after the Vienna summit meeting of Soviet Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said Britain's attitude is in no way altered by the Soviet complaints against meetings of West German parliamentarians in West Berlin.

In Washington, Lincoln White, U. S. State Department press officer, denied that these meetings are—as the Russians charged—"a new major provocation against the Soviet Union."

The protests were submitted to the Moscow embassies of the United States, Britain and France—who occupy West Berlin militarily—against meetings this week in West Berlin by committees of the West German Parliament and a plan to hold a meeting of the upper house there June 16.

Von Eckardt charged the Soviet Union was making trouble only for propaganda purposes.

"Nobody could conceivably treat these activities of our government as threat to peace," he said.

Police Activities In Twin Cities

Monroe police booked eight persons from 10 p.m. Thursday until 10 p.m. Friday and answered numerous complaints.

One person was booked at 11:20 p.m. Thursday for disturbing the peace and public drunkenness and at the same time, one was booked for disturbing the peace.

Friday's activities included one booked for vagrancy, two for public drunkenness and a demented person picked up. An escapee from a work detail of the West Monroe police was also picked up yesterday.

Flood Fighters Winning Battle

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (AP) — A wet and weary army of workers held the line atop soggy dikes Friday as the swollen Kootenai River made its final surge.

The river crested at just under 37 feet shortly after midnight, leveled off unevenly and then began to drop.

Despite a drenching rain and another day of high water, all the dikes held and kept back the river from some 90,000 acres of rich bottomland in northern Idaho and adjoining British Columbia.

The army of more than 2,000 flood fighters worked around the clock at strengthening dangerous weakened dikes downstream between Bonners Ferry and the Canadian border.

The Weather Bureau predicted the Kootenai would continue to fall.

Some 4,300 acres of farm land were flooded as the river crested twice at well above 37 feet and again Thursday night a bit lower.

Morton Is Against U.S. Campaign Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thorton B. Morton, R-Ky., Friday opposed dipping into the federal Treasury to help political parties pay for their presidential campaigns.

Morton, who resigned recently as Republican national chairman, said the government should do no more than permit income tax deductions for political contributions up to $50 or $100, just as charitable contributions are deductible.

"I don't think we should give anything to any party from the federal Treasury, other than a tax deduction," he told the Senate Elections subcommittee.

Security Agency Employee Missing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department, FBI and police departments along the east coast are searching for a missing employee of the National Security Agency (NSA) the Pentagon disclosed Friday night.

The missing man, described as a horse race fan, was identified as William Hyter Covington, 28. A Defense Department spokesman said he held the "fairly low"

HOUSE ACTION NEXT

Senate Modifies Plan On Housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Modification staved off disaster in the Senate early Friday for President Kennedy's housing proposal for modest-income families. But administration leaders now are hopeful they can restore it in full when the House acts this month.

House administration leaders said "we think we have the votes" to restore the 40-year, no-down payment loans for houses costing up to $15,000 in the form Kennedy proposed.

The Senate Thursday at first voted to knock the whole program out of a $6.1-billion catch-all housing bill. But Democratic leaders won a reversal toward the end of a 13½-hour session. They had to concede an important point, however—as approved by the Senate, the mortgages would require down payments running to $355.

Housing specialists in the House feel the down-payment requirement would seriously limit the use of the program by the families in the $4,000-$6,000 income bracket for which it is intended.

Still they were cheered by the fact that the long-term mortgages, in any form, remained in the Senate bill. This means that even if the House, traditionally more conservative on housing legislation, should knock out the program, it still has a chance of being revived in the conference between the two chambers.

It is taken for granted that the Senate and House will pass different versions of the bill initially

32 Inspectors Suspended In Payoff Scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner announced Friday the suspension of 32 school construction inspectors in a snow-balling scandal over payoffs by contractors.

Louis I. Kaplan, Investigation Commissioner, told the mayor he had uncovered 47 incidents of Board of Education employees accepting Christmas liquor, gift certificates and similar items from contractors whose work they were supposed to supervise.

Fifteen of those cited by Kaplan no longer work for the board. Those still on the payroll were suspended.

Kaplan's report covered the period from 1956 to 1959.

The Board of Education already has barred 26 contracting firms from further school business. Kaplan's report added three additional firms to the list.

The district attorney's office, meanwhile, prepared to put the school scandal before a grand jury. Fifty-three inspectors were called in, forced to sign waivers of immunity to prosecution as required by law, then handed financial questionnaires returnable June 27.

The city's school construction program is under investigation also by the State Investigation Commission, which has scheduled public hearings for June 20.

URBAN RENEWAL

Former Exclusive Area Gets U.S. Aid

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y. (AP) — This spacious, woody community once the exclusive haven of the wealthy, Friday came in for a share of government aid to solve its new population pressures.

It received a federal urban renewal grant to plan development.

"We needed it and we needed it badly," said Mayor Trescott A. Buell. "This used to be just a private park, a club, but the community is growing. We faced some tough problems, and the money was not here to handle them."

Tuxedo Park, for years a stronghold of conservatism and gracious living outside the teeming travail of New York City, was founded more than half a century ago as a preserve of large, private estates.

Situated on the west side of the Hudson River in a rolling, treed area of Orange County, it was incorporated as a village in 1953, covering four square miles.

It now has a population of about 1,000—nearly double what it was eight years ago.

"The place is full of children and dogs now," Buell said. "And we're very proud of it. A lot of middle-income people are moving in. New families and young business people. We've been encouraging this."

"But the change has brought about tremendous problems," he said. "These include, he said, extending water systems and sewage mains, providing fire and police protection, zoning questions, and maintaining 28 miles of roads serving residents scattered over the vast tract of sylvan glades and hillsides.

"We asked for this aid to work out a long-range development

Miss Gage Divorces Her Second Mate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leona Gage, who was Miss United States for a day, Friday divorced her second husband.

Miss Gage, 22, won a default decree after testifying that Nicholas Covacevich, 23, a dance instructor and choreographer, told her he's have preferred never to have married her.

She won the 1957 Miss United States contest as Miss Maryland and was relieved of the title when judges discovered she was married to Gene Ennis, an Air Force sergeant. Rules ban married women from the contest. She and Ennis were divorced afterward and she married Covacevich on Nov. 17, 1958. They separated March 16 this year.

A property settlement gives her a minimum of $200 a month support plus 20 per cent of his income above $10,000 a year and 25 per cent above $17,500 a year. She was given custody of their son, Nicholas Jr., 1. She has two sons from her first marriage.

position of grade 9 clerk at a salary of about $6,500 a year.

It was not known immediately whether Covington handled secret materials. The FBI said it had not been asked to investigate and declined comment.

A defense spokesman said Covington, father of a new baby, had been spotted Tuesday at the Charles Town, W. Va., race track.

Kennedy Clarifies Envoys' Authority

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has made clear that U. S. ambassadors are in full charge of American government activities in the countries where they are stationed.

This means, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Friday, that all U. S. government employees working abroad are to take orders when necessary from the ambassador.

Rusk disclosed that Kennedy sent personal letters to all U. S. ambassadors around the world last month underscoring their authority and responsibilities.

Girl Scout News

Troops ending the regular meeting year with overnights at Pine Wood include Troops 23, 26 and 34. Mrs. Gene Spatafora, leader of Troop 34, now experienced campers, recommends, a fun week-end camp experience as a culmination of a year's work.

Girls who are specializing in camping these days are the ones known as Roundup campers. Girls who are now Senior Scouts or who will be in the fall are possible candidates for the patrol which the council will approve for the Senior Roundup in '62. Girls are encouraged to participate in the training, most of which is being held this summer.

Two nights at Pine Wood, setting up tents, cooking on charcoal, working in patrols, was the program last week for 26 girls. Mrs. Charles Overton is Roundup trainer for the council and is being assisted by Mrs. N. L. Huckabee. Jateen Kelly, Tonette Albright and Mickie Varnado were patrol leaders for the event.

Arriving at camp, the girls chose a section for their campsite and before long had an orderly row of green tents set up and ditched, grease pit dug, shelf for water cooler and tool rack lashed, cooking and eating areas defined. At the entrance to the camp a group set up a temporary flag pole, cutting a small tree that was too crowded to develop properly, attaching a pulley at top and a halyard on which to run up the flag. Raising the pole, the girls tied four guy ropes, which they pegged down.

Cooking with charcoal briquettes, as will be done at Roundup, was a new experience since Scouts couldn't use lighter fluid and had to rely on strips of milk cartons. Heating dish water after the meal and washing dishes in a sanitary manner was part of the training.

Even what looks like work to a casual observer is fun for campers. Activities included hikes, impromptu dramatics and song fests, around a campfire. A unit for Senior Scouts at day camp will include a similar experience, and a five-day camp is planned for August.

Girls participating were Tonette Albright, Bonnie Baldo, Carolyn Brooks, Elaine Butler, Mary Clampt, Martha Clampt, Jamie Corley, Carol Culpepper, Connie Davis, Jane Edwards, Mary Elmhorn, Susan Ellington, Milann Gannaway, Diane Halley, Robbie Hicks, Loretta Jones, Jateen Kelly, Pam Kull, Becky Middleton, Carole Overton, Becky Parkerson, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Linda Upshaw, Mickie Varnado, Jayne Wallace.

The sewing class scheduled for the agricultural building tomorrow has been postponed until the first week in August. Girls enrolled should phone the office to indicate whether they plan to attend. The class scheduled for the 19-23 will go on as planned.

This week is the last for registration and completion of payments on fees for the first session of day camp. The first training for staff is next week, June 21. Volunteers are needed.
